

HOOVER BLAMES ROOSEVELT FOR 1933 BANK PANIC
AND COLLAPSE

Public Distrust of New Administration and Its Failure to Co-Operate With Him Caused 'Unnecessary' Crisis, He Asserts.

ST. LOUIS AUDIENCE
CHEERS ADDRESS

Public Works Called 'Sociological Experiments,' Mostly Failures—Return of Relief to Local Units Urged to Cut Huge Cost.

Herbert Hoover "wowed" his dinner audience of 1200, at Hotel Jefferson last night, with a 38-minute speech in which he charged the Roosevelt administration with having prolonged the depression, and offered a four-point program for taking relief away from Washington and out of politics.

The audience, largely masculine and almost solidly Republican, cheered vigorously as the former President read his punchy paragraphs. The contrast with the speaker's last previous St. Louis address, made on the eve of the 1932 election and in the shadow of defeat, was notable. That speech was a defense and a grim pronouncement of warning, last night's speech was an attack on the New Deal and its chief, in which ridicule was used often and skillfully.

President Roosevelt's Atlanta speech was the text, and the target was the assertion, made in the Atlanta speech, that "the mechanics of civilization came to a dead stop on March 3, 1933," the last day of the Hoover presidential term.

What happened at the change of administrations, the former President told his applauding hearers, was a collapse of public confidence, caused by distrust of the incoming regime, and "an induced hysteria of bank depositors," leading to "the most political and most unnecessary panic in our history, which could have been prevented by simple co-operation," meaning the co-operation which he, the outgoing President, had offered in vain.

There were lusty cheers when the former President, pointing out that civilization's "dead stop" had not halted agriculture, industry, transportation, churches, schools or courts, added, "And the Supreme Court seems to be functioning yet."

Reading his speech from sheets handed to a high frame, former President Hoover interpreted a few telling sentences, not in the manuscript. After reciting the names of alphabetical agencies, he predicted that "When they are all buried, their spirit will live in O.U." At another point, he was charged with conspiracy to interfere with Federal relief measures by soliciting contributions of money to the Leader from workers paid with Federal relief and highway funds.

Judge Wyman denied similar motions for the other defendants after the Government had rested its case. He told of "pioneer" relief efforts early in the depression, and of the appearance then of "starry-eyed" idealists ready to condemn all practical measures, of experimenters, profit-seekers and political schemers, and, "thank God," men and women, in every American community, understanding their neighbors' needs and unselfish in serving them. He emphasized the local character of effective relief, as compared with centralization from Washington.

"Simple experience," he said, showed that public works do not furnish enough jobs to justify them.

HANGED IN CANADA

MRS. ELIZABETH TILFORD.

MOTHER OF 9 HANGED
FOR KILLING HUSBAND

First Woman Executed in Province of Ontario in 62 Years—Walks to Scaffold.

By the Associated Press.
WOODSTOCK, Ont., Dec. 17.—Mrs. Elizabeth Tilford, 56 years old and mother of nine children, was executed in the Woodstock County jail yard today for the poison murder of her third husband. She was the first woman to be hanged in Ontario in 62 years.

None of her family was present as she entered the court yard slowly from her cell, where she had been in a virtual state of collapse, and walked through falling snow to the scaffold.

The trap was sprung at 12:39 a. m. Death was announced as having been instantaneous.

Only official witnesses and court authorities were permitted in the jail and the nearby court house. The coroner's jury remained behind locked doors until 1:30 a. m. before viewing the body.

Four of Mrs. Tilford's children survive.

She was convicted here last October of poisoning her last husband, Tyrrell Tilford, after she offered no defense witnesses. Her counsel tried to show by cross-examination that Tilford might have committed suicide.

CO-DEFENDANT OF LINGER FREED ON DIRECTED VERDICT

Oscar Erickson, Publisher of Weekly Cleared of Conspiracy Charges by Federal Court.

By the Associated Press.
BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 17.—Federal Judge A. Lee Wyman today granted a directed verdict freeing Oscar Erickson, chairman of the State Republican Committee, of conspiracy charges.

Erickson is publisher of the Leader, political weekly. With three other persons, including former Gov. Langer, he was charged with conspiracy to interfere with Federal relief measures by soliciting contributions of money to the Leader from workers paid with Federal relief and highway funds.

Judge Wyman denied similar motions for the other defendants after the Government had rested its case. He told of "pioneer" relief efforts early in the depression, and of the appearance then of "starry-eyed" idealists ready to condemn all practical measures, of experimenters, profit-seekers and political schemers, and, "thank God," men and women, in every American community, understanding their neighbors' needs and unselfish in serving them. COUNTY OUSTER
SUIT DEPOSITIONS
TAKEN AT CLAYTON

Judge Wohlschlaeger Says Counselor Mooney Gave Him Draft of Motion to Rehire Dr. Sheahan.

GOT HOSPITAL JOBS
FOR TWO, HE ADMITS

Recorder of Deeds Schmidt and Circuit Clerk Jacobs-meyer Also Are Questioned.

Depositions of three witnesses in the ouster suit against Dr. Edwin L. Sheahan, superintendent of St. Louis County Hospital, and County Counselor John E. Mooney, filed at Clayton last week, were taken today in the office of Prosecuting Attorney C. Arthur Anderson, who filed the suits on the ground of "willful neglect of duty."

The first witness, Emil Wohlschlaeger, Associate Judge of the County Court, and a Republican, testified he voted to remove Dr. Sheahan last June in September, at Mooney's instance, and because the grand jury which investigated the hospital voted no indictment and he thought the superintendent was "not guilty" of conspiracy against the hospital.

Mooney never discussed the hospital situation with him except to say they were "having an awful time over there," Wohlschlaeger said, until the day of the superintendent's removal. After that time, he continued, Mooney said to him before court, "We've got to do something about the hospital; it's got to come to a head some time," and handed him a typewritten sheet bearing the motion for reinstatement of Dr. Sheahan.

Wohlschlaeger read the motion, which was seconded by Presiding Judge Thomas H. Thatcher, and voted to restore Dr. Sheahan to the superintendency.

Denies Republican Influence.
The witness denied he had been influenced by Republican politicians in voting to remove the superintendent. He said he favored vacating the office in June because the grand jury at the time was investigating the hospital and he thought it should have "full access" to the institution.

"What happened to make you vote to reinstate Dr. Sheahan?" asked Associate Prosecuting Attorney John Wolfe.

"I felt we hadn't done justice in not giving him a hearing before discharging him," Wohlschlaeger replied.

He said he "conducted a little investigation of my own and talked to some patients who said they were treated all right and that's all I could find out."

Wolfe asked the witness if he had ever arranged with Dr. Sheahan to get jobs for his friends, the witness replied he had not.

Got Jobs for Two.
In reply to another question, however, he said the name of Mrs. Louise M. Dahl, receiving room employee, was taken from "my list."

He explained that last January Judge Tighe told him to make up a list of persons he wanted to suggest for hospital jobs. Mrs. Dahl is the Republican Committeewoman from Bonhomme Township.

Asked if he had recommended anyone else, the witness recalled he once sent a young woman to the superintendent and that she had been put to work as a telephone operator.

The next witness was former Recorder of Deeds Arthur W. Schmidt, by whom Wohlschlaeger was employed 14 years before his election to the County Court in 1933. Schmidt denied he advised Wohlschlaeger to vote for Dr. Sheahan's removal and said he didn't recall telling Wolfe he had done so.

He testified that he was unable to recall the subject of several conversations with Mooney about the time of the superintendent's reinstatement.

Circuit Clerk Questioned.
Circuit Clerk Jacob H. Jacobs-meyer, the next witness called by Wolfe, was questioned about the appointment of Mooney's son, Robert, as a clerk in his office.

Mooney entered frequent objections, as he had done throughout the hearing, charging the taking of testimony was "purely for political purposes."

Jacobs-meyer testified the fact that Mooney was County Counselor had nothing to do with the appointment of the son. "Mooney told me a year or two ago that his son had studied law and asked me to give him a job if there was an opening."

DRIVERS, REJECTED IN LICENSE TESTS,
SEND IN 'RINGERS'

Bureau Reports 20 Cases of Attempted Fraud; to Prosecute in Future.

About 20 cases of attempted fraud in applications for city drivers' licenses have been discovered, Patrick Dunlavy, chief license examiner, said today.

Motorists whose applications had been rejected because of illiteracy or poor eyesight sent "ringers" in to impersonate them on second attempts. In each case the impersonator was sent away with a warning not to try it again, but from now on persons attempting fraud will be arrested and prosecuted, Dunlavy said.

The impostors were discovered by comparing the signatures and physical descriptions on the applications with the persons presenting them. One man weighing about 130 pounds tried to get an application approved that gave the driver's weight as 200 pounds.

One elderly man expressed fear he would not pass the vision test and remarked that it would be "worth $50" to him to pass. The man failed the vision test, and was rejected.

The penalty for making a false statement or attempting fraud in obtaining a driver's license is a fine of from $25 to $500, or a workhouse term up to six months, or both.

ALUMINUM-COATED STEEL
DEVELOPED BY NEW PROCESS

Columbia U. Professor Announces Use of Hydrogen to Obtain Bond Between Metals.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Prof. Colin G. Fink, head of the division of electro-chemistry of Columbia University, reported today completion of a process to coat steel with aluminum.

The importance of the process, he said, lies in the combination of the non-corrosive properties of aluminum with the tensile strength of steel.

The process consists of saturating the surface of steel with hot hydrogen gas before dipping the metal into a molten aluminum bath. The gas, Prof. Fink said, insures a perfect bond between the steel and the aluminum.

The coated steel, he said, can be used for many purposes where a strong metal with high corrosion resistance is needed.

He will attend the annual dinner Saturday of the Gridiron Club, an organization of Washington correspondents.

CITY RELIEF AGENCY FIRES 120
ON ADMINISTRATION STAFF

60 Social Workers, Rest Clerical Employees; Director Cut Depends on WPA.

Robert J. Crump, director of the St. Louis Relief Administration, said today that 120 members of the administration staff had received dismissal notices, but he was unable to say how many families had been helped by the relief rolls because of WPA jobs.

Sixty of those discharged were social workers, the rest clerical employees. Further reduction of the staff, which now numbers about 500, will depend on the effectiveness of the work relief program. Crump said, it has been estimated that all but 17,000 of the 40,000 families on relief in the city will be sustained by the WPA payrolls.

Nine of the 15 district relief offices will be closed by Jan. 1, according to Crump.

DEPUTIES UPHOLD
PREMIER LAVAL
ON PEACE PLAN

He Is Given Vote of Confidence, 306 to 252, to Continue Conciliation Efforts at Geneva.

BOOED BY LEFTISTS
IN STORMY SESSION

Says He Agreed to Proposals on Ethiopia as 'Last Attempt' to Prevent War in Europe.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)
PARIS, Dec. 17.—The Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 306 to 252, assured Premier Pierre Laval today of its confidence in his program to settle the Italian-Ethiopian war.

The vote of confidence came after Laval had dared the Chamber to overthrow his Government, declaring he refused "to go to Geneva under humiliating conditions." The deputies voted on the Premier's demand that interpellations of the Government on its plan in handling the Italian-Ethiopian situation be postponed until Dec. 27.

In a tumultuous session preceding the vote, many spectators joined in the cheers for Laval by his adherents, while the Premier's Leftist enemies booed and shouted invectives at his supporters in the galleries.

As a result of his success, Laval will go to Geneva to debate the French-British proposals for termination of the war, which he described as a "last effort at peaceful settlement." Parliamentary circles considered this statement as meaning nothing further will be proposed unless Premier Mussolini agreed to the plan in principle, although modifications could be made afterward.

"At Geneva," Laval declared, "I will follow only the policy I outlined this morning. If you consider it dangerous, do not wait until Dec. 27."

He said he refused to go to Geneva under humiliating conditions. Laval told the Chamber he and British Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare agreed on their proposals for settlement of the Italian-Ethiopian war as a "last effort" to prevent war in Europe.

Application of an oil-coal-iron steel embargo against Italy—an additional war penalty, discussion of which the French-British peace plan interrupted—threatened, Laval said, to "lead to war."

In a spirited defense of his action in advancing the peace proposals, which critics have denounced as a reward to Italy for its aggression, Laval asserted: "Article XVI of the League Covenant (providing for sanctions) could have engaged us in war. Believe me, that I weighed the meaning of my acts. It is up to Geneva and others to do what they see fit."

The League of Nations Council is scheduled to meet tomorrow to consider the proposals.

He insisted he and Foreign Secretary Hoare were qualified to act as they did since they were "in accord with the League."

Sanctions not only mean stopping hostilities," Laval told the Deputies. "It is equally in conformity with the letter and spirit of the covenant to seek a peaceful settlement, that is to say, a peaceful solution."

"I never stopped hoping conciliation would be possible some day, and with a tenacity which I am proud to admit, I kept seeking the elements of a friendly arrangement."

Recalling that Great Britain agreed to avoid military sanctions, Laval reminded the Chamber that "responsible delegates of different countries limited application of the League Covenant" in the Ethiopian conflict to economic sanctions.

"Interested Governments had to seek a peaceful solution, one that was honorable and just," he asserted.

"I accepted the ideas of Great Britain, on whose understanding with France depends our safety," Laval declared.

Held for Poison Murder

MISS MARIE SIMONNE SEYIGNY.

NURSE ADMITS KILLING PATIENT WITH POISON

Gave Cleaning Fluid to Rhode Island Woman; Other Deaths Investigated.

By the Associated Press.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Dec. 17.—Deputy Chief of Police Jon E. Crowley said Miss Marie Simonne Seyigny, 26 years old, a practical nurse, confessed last night she killed a patient here. An investigation was started into the deaths of three other former patients.

Crowley said the woman admitted, after more than 10 hours of questioning, she had administered a dose of a cleaning fluid to Mrs. J. Valmore Normandin, 47, wife of an auditor employed by the State who died last Wednesday.

The officer said the other deaths to be investigated had occurred in families in this city and in East Douglas, Mass., where Miss Seyigny had been employed.

Miss Seyigny was on the verge of collapse and unable to appear in court when the case was called today. Her counsel entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of murder as the defendant sat in an ante-room. Dec. 27 was set as the date of hearing.

Quoting her confession, Crowley said Miss Seyigny admitted knowing the fluid would kill Mrs. Normandin. Asked why she had administered the dose, Crowley said she replied, to "calm her down."

Later, he said, she explained to him her motive for her suffering.

Crowley then asked Miss Seyigny if she meant she had given Mrs. Normandin the fluid to "kill her."

He said she answered, "yes." Crowley said the young woman admitted planning the act a half hour before its perpetration. She related that she had given the family breakfast and then, because Mrs. Normandin could not come down to breakfast, took her some coffee. Then, the confession continued, she took Mrs. Normandin to the bathroom to bathe her, and gave her the cleaning fluid into which she mixed a little water.

Police Surgeon Dr. Edward L. Myers said there was "every evidence to believe Miss Seyigny is a drug addict." When taken into custody, Miss Seyigny, who at one time had been a member of a religious order, had a bag containing numerous drugs, Crowley said.

Crowley said no plans had been made to exhumate the bodies of the other persons who died while Miss Seyigny was in their employ. He said the others were Mrs. Arthur Gelinas, who was alleged to have died of cancer about a year ago; a Mrs. Lancot, who died about a year ago, and Mrs. Frank Prince of East Douglas, Mass.

ROOSEVELT TO SEEK RIVER FRONT GRANT

He Will Ask Congress to Pledge Government's Share of St. Louis Memorial Cost.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—President Roosevelt said at his press conference today that he had promised a St. Louis delegation that he would ask Congress in January during the first week of the coming session to enact a resolution providing for the eventual erection of the $30,000,000 Thomas Jefferson River Front Memorial.

Mayor Dickinson and City Counselor Edgar H. Wayman have been in Washington since Saturday working for the river front memorial. Attorney-General Cummings, in a memorandum several weeks ago, held that the President was without power to make the memorial a national project and allocate work relief funds sufficient to meet the St. Louis bond issue funds, on the basis of three Federal dollars for each St. Louis dollar.

"So help you God" removed in Wisconsin jury swearing.

Change in Procedure Voted by State Legislature Is Made Known.

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 17.—A legislative change has removed the answer "So help you God" to the pledge of duty of criminal case jurors.

The discovery was made in Milwaukee County Municipal Court by State Senator Charles H. Phillips, Milwaukee Democrat, whose Judiciary Committee approved the change. The complicated bill made numerous revisions. One was to make the oath in a criminal case conform to that of justice court.

Phillips asserted most members of the Legislature believed in a Supreme Being and would not have let the bill pass had they realized its full import.

Claus was sentenced July 25 by the People's Court for "preparation of high treason." He was a former associate of Max Hoelz, leader of postwar revolts in Germany.

The death sentence of another Communist, former Reichstag Deputy Albert Kayser, was commuted to life imprisonment by Hitler.

Kayser also was sentenced for treason.

Defeat of Fascists by 3000 of Enemy in Northern Sector Admitted in Rome—Considerable Losses on Both Sides.

ANOTHER BATTLE
NOW IN PROGRESS

Air Forces and Detachments of Tanks Sent Into Action—Supply Center in the South Bombed by Planes.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Dec. 17.—The Italian Government announced today that Italian troops had retired before an attack of about 3000 Ethiopians on the northern front. This announcement, the first of the war in which Italy has admitted a check, was made in an official communique.

There were considerable losses among the Italian forces, including four Italian officers killed and three wounded, nine Italian soldiers killed and many Eritrean allies killed and wounded. The Ethiopian losses were "considerable."

The text of the communique: "Notable enemy forces estimated at 3000 armed men attacked our advance observation posts on the Takkaze River near the ford of Mai Timchet.

"Our Eritrean troops, after having put up a bitter resistance, withdrew to Dembequina Pass.

"At the same time, another group of Ethiopian warriors crossed the river valley, making a flanking movement in the region of Scire, the population of which has submitted to us.

"The enemy maneuver resulted in a battle that now is in progress and in which, on our side, air forces and detachments of tanks are taking an active part.

"In the first engagement, four officers and nine national soldiers were killed and three officers were wounded.

"The enemy losses are not determined, but they were considerable."

Ethiopians Supply Base in South Bombed by Italians.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY AT DOLO, Dec. 14 (by courier to Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, Dec. 16).—Airmen of Italy's Southern army bombed the Ethiopian town of Neghelli today. Pilots said when they returned that the damage was heavy, but they were unable to estimate the number of casualties.

Neghelli is the source of supplies of the rear guard of Ras Desta Demtu's army. The Ethiopian chieftain is a son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Although it was hit by Ethiopian fire, an Italian plane returned safely to its base at Lugh, Italian Somaliland, a short distance from Dolo.

Ethiopians Attacking Italian Outposts in the North.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Dec. 17.—Reports of fighting along the northern front today indicated Ethiopian forces were attacking Italian outposts in test skirmishes preliminary to a mass attack.

Sporadic fighting occurred along the front in Tigre Province. It was apparent from the nature of the fighting that the Ethiopians were sending forward highly mobile, but closely connected advance guards.

Fights were reported south of Makale and along the Takkaze River.

Italian officers said that in most cases the Ethiopians raided Italian outposts and engaged in "brisk battles," then retired quickly before the counter-attacks.

so he could acquire a 'legal atmosphere,' the witness continued.

He denied that it was an "odd coincidence" that the opening occurred about the time Mooney became County Counselor. He testified that Robert Mooney had made an efficient record in the office, collecting $1000 to $2000 a month in overdue court costs.

Jacobsmeyer pointed out that the elder Mooney, representing the County Court, had opposed him in a lawsuit in Supreme Court and "beat him both at the first hearing and at a rehearing."

Today's hearing was concluded with Jacobsmeyer's testimony, and no date was set for a future hearing.

Other witnesses for whom subpoenas have been issued are Dr. Sheahan and Presiding Judge Thatcher.

Committee Named.

Five St. Louis County citizens were asked by the County Court yesterday to serve on a committee to draft legislation to "take the County Hospital out of politics" and make possible support of the institution by a separate tax.

Those named by the court were former Circuit Judges Arthur V. Lashly of Webster Groves and Amandus Brackman, Shrewsbury; George Barnett, Walnut Grove, an attorney; Dr. John H. Armstrong, Kirkwood, a physician, and Harry A. Wellington, printing company head and a former University City Alderman.

Lashly was Prosecuting Attorney 20 years ago. Mooney was then his assistant. Brackman shared a law office with Mooney some years ago. Barnett was an associate of Mooney in the Taxpayers' Protective Association, which fought the Ralph Sewer Law, and succeeded Mooney as attorney for the liquidator of the County Hospital.

Dr. Armstrong was one of the 18 physicians whom Dr. Sheahan appointed to the staff last week after 24 members of the staff had resigned because of "too much politics."

Prosecuting Attorney Anderson told a Post-Dispatch reporter he thought the committee was hand-picked to whitewash the hospital situation. A similar opinion was expressed by Associate Judge Eugene Tighe of the County Court, who has opposed the management of the hospital by Dr. Sheahan as superintendent. Tighe said he had not known of the appointment of the committee.

The committee was asked to meet with the County Court at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning at Clayton. The Court's plans were in line with its announcement last week that it would appoint a committee to prepare a bill to be introduced at the next session of the Legislature to take the hospital out of the jurisdiction of the County Court and remove the same from politics as far as possible.

Resignation of Doctors.

Filing of the ouster suits against Dr. Sheahan and Mooney followed months of political turmoil at the hospital, growing out of the fight for jobs there and resulting two weeks ago in resignation of 24 of the 87 members of the hospital's medical staff.

Civil organizations, such as the County Chamber of Commerce and the League of Women Voters, have recommended taking control of the hospital out of the County Court's hands and placing it in a bi-partisan board. A grand jury last spring reported the hospital, as then operated, was "a menace to public health and safety."

SHOE FACTORY EMPLOYEES
GET 8 PER CENT PAY RISE

Concern at Milwaukee Enlarges Plan of Giving Men Share of Gross Income.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 17.—Seven hundred employees of the Nunn-Bush Shoe Co., working under a guaranteed job and pay plan, will receive an 8 per cent increase in their weekly checks, effective Jan. 2.

Last June the company put its factory employees on a yearly basis, giving them a fixed percentage of the company's gross income. Regardless of fluctuations in production, they were assured 52 checks a year.

The program worked so well during the last six months that the company drew up an expanded contract which was approved by the bargaining committee of the employees' union.

"The gross income has been greater than was estimated when the first contract was made," Henry Nunn, president of the company, said. "Hence it seemed sensible to increase the amount of the weekly check, so that the workers could get more money for current expenses—rather than continue to get a less money currently and get a bigger chunk of adjusted compensation next July 1."

Under the plan, the workers are guaranteed an adjusted compensation at the end of the year as their share of every dollar taken in. It rises or falls as the business increases or decreases.

Mrs. Hert Retains National Post.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Louisville, Ky., has retained her vice-chairmanship of the Republican National Committee. Following her resignation as Republican committeewoman from Kentucky, Nov. 22, it was generally taken for granted that she had stepped down also from her national committee chair. Yesterday at the session of the National Committee Mrs. Virginia White Speel of the District of Columbia urged Mrs. Hert to stay on, despite her resignation. Mrs. Hert was willing, and the committee agreed.

U. S. AGENTS SPLIT WITH POLICE IN KIDNAPING INQUIRY

Continue Own Search for Caleb Milne IV, Missing Heir of Philadelphia Manufacturer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—While New York police continued to list him merely as "missing," Federal agents carried on independently today their search for Caleb Jones Milne IV, 24 years old, who disappeared Saturday, under circumstances that indicated kidnapping.

The Department of Justice men rejected the assistance of the city police. "The New York detectives are on the outside looking in," said Rhea Whitley, head of the Federal agents here. He gave police failure to co-operate as the reason for the split. The police, he said, delayed eight hours before notifying the Federal agents Sunday that Milne was missing and there was another 36-hour delay before the police turned over two notes to the Federal men.

One of the notes was a message left by Milne Saturday for his brother, Frederic, at the apartment which they shared in Manhattan. The other, indicating Milne had been kidnapped, was composed of words clipped from newspaper type and pasted on wrapping paper. Mailed at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., it was accompanied by a Christmas card with the typewritten salutation, "Greetings to you."

Relatives of the missing man went on mysterious errands in two States today.

An aunt, a brother and a Department of Justice agent departed hastily from Woodstock, N. Y., the Catskill Mountain village where Milne's mother lives. Miss Anita Smith, the aunt, had said earlier, "We are hoping something will break immediately."

In Philadelphia, Caleb J. Milne II, the young man's wealthy grandfather, and a man said to be an uncle, left the Milne home in an automobile. They were gone only an hour and then returned. When they started out rumor had it they were going to a bank. Federal agents kept everyone away from the house.

The New York Times said it was reported, but not confirmed, that $50,000 in ransom had been demanded in a letter to the grandfather which threatened death for young Milne.

The story said the letter arrived in a package containing a wrist watch the grandfather had given the boy in 1924. The second and hour hands were broken. Stains on the paper in which the watch was wrapped, the Times said, had not been analyzed.

"If you fail," the Times story quoted the letter, "you will find him dead. Death for the fourth Milne. Take the money to New York to your grandson, who is waiting for orders."

Milne, however, was quoted later as saying he had received "no note or clippings or demands for ransom."

TESTIMONY ENDS IN HULLVERSON DISBARMENT SUIT

Commissioners' Recommendation on Three Lawyers Won't Reach Supreme Court Before Spring.

Testimony ended at noon today in the disbarment suit of the Eighth (St. Louis) Judicial Circuit Bar Committee against Everett Hullverson, Robert L. Pribble and Eugene J. Schmick. It was the twentieth day of the hearing, which began Nov. 12, before John S. Farrington, Special Commissioner. The concluding testimony was heard in Circuit Judge Beck's courtroom, No. 14, on the seventh floor of the Civil Courts Building.

Commissioner Farrington's report and recommendation will not reach the Supreme Court until next spring or summer. Sixty days will be taken for writing up the record of the hearing, estimated by the court stenographer at 3500 typewritten pages. The transcript will be submitted to counsel for both sides and a summary of the testimony will then be required from both sides, the defense 15 days after completion of the record, and the complainant after another 15 days. The Commissioner will then set a time for oral arguments, hearing of which will precede the preparation of his report.

Bar's Rebuttal Testimony.

The Bar Committee's only witness in rebuttal today was James E. McLaughlin, Assistant Circuit Attorney. He told of an inquiry made by him into the banana damage suit of Clara Thomas against the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co., based on a fall in a grocery store. The result of the inquiry, and of his consultation with Circuit Attorney Miller, he said, was the decision that no criminal prosecution of the lawyer should be undertaken. Hullverson, recalled by his counsel for a few minutes, reaffirmed the correctness of his office ledger, as, exhibit in yesterday's testimony, and said he had begun a new bookkeeping system before he knew that his office was to be investigated.

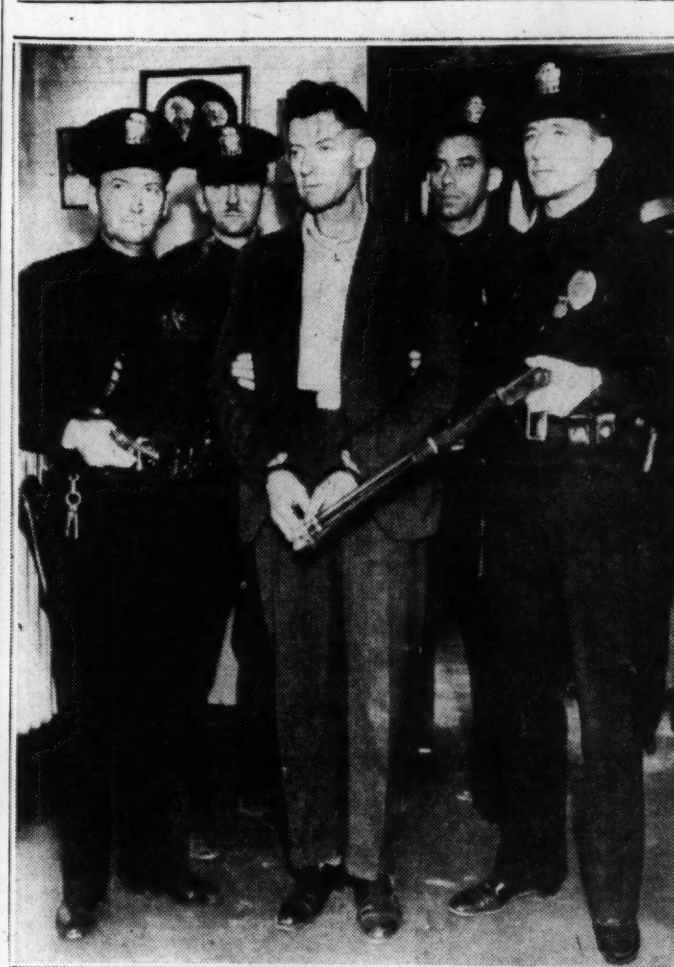

Deposition to Be Added.

The Bar Committee sought to introduce a news article and an editorial giving an unfavorable view of Hullverson's activities. These were excluded, over the plea of the committee's counsel that they be placed alongside favorable newspaper comment which Hullverson had introduced. The committee wished also to reserve the privilege of calling another witness, an insurance company representative. It developed that his testimony was on minor points, and it was decided that his deposition should be taken tomorrow, and added to the record.

A list of occupational disease damage suits filed by Hullverson in St. Louis and St. Louis County, from Oct. 1, 1932, to the present, was filed. The number of cases was 274.

Hullverson last evening completed his testimony, which began last

Water Carrier Who Shot 7 Men

CHARLES E. LAYMAN.
WPA employee, who killed five men and wounded two as they worked on a project in Los Angeles, yesterday.

Thursday afternoon and continued through Friday and yesterday. Schmick testified in his own defense previously. Pribble did not testify. Another co-defendant, Francis O. Curran, an office associate of Hullverson, was originally included in the charges of unethical and unprofessional practice. He was discharged by the Commissioner after the Bar Committee's evidence had been presented, as the Commissioner held that no testimony had been given which would call for discipline in his case.

Hullverson Denies All Charges.

From the witness stand Hullverson denied all the charges in the Bar Committee's petition: that he had conspired with the co-defendants to practice law unethically; had solicited claims and suits; had prosecuted fraudulent claims; had hired runners to solicit business; had split fees with persons not lawyers; had directed clients to make feigned manifestations of illness; had induced clients to give false testimony; had continued to handle the banana damage suit after learning that it was based on a fake accident.

His defense was that after he accepted his first silicosis case in 1931, that of Charles Gasperson, a friend, who has since died, he became an expert on silicosis and clients "beat a path" to his door as the result of widespread favorable publicity he received.

He took the position that large lead, sand and gravel companies fostered the investigation of his law practice in order to force him out of business because he had filed so many claims against them. In cross-examination of Bar Committee witnesses, his attorney, Patrick H. Cullen, brought out that some of the witnesses had received payments from the companies. Cullen contended the payments were for statements against Hullverson but the witnesses in general denied this.

Hullverson Cross-Examined.

The Bar Committee counsel announced that George Wise, who conducted the testimony as to Clara Thomas' banana case, was to cross-examine Hullverson as to that case; and that Frank Hollingsworth would conduct the rest of the cross-examination.

Hollingsworth began the questioning with an inspection of Hullverson's office ledger, and brought out that the sheets now in the ledger, covering dealings from 1933 to last May, were not the original to last May, were copied by Hullverson's sister. Hullverson said his sister did the work over a period of six months with about 30 days of actual work. He denied his interrogator's suggestion that the ledger, in its present form, was "a fake," and said his sister had made "virtually exact copies" from his memoranda. He said the work was undertaken before he knew that the Bar Association was investigating him.

In the cross-examination, Hullverson took an argumentative attitude, and at times prefaced re-

WPA WORKER HELD FOR KILLING FIVE FELLOW EMPLOYEES

Water Carrier on Los Angeles Project, Who Says He Was "Picked On," Wounded Two Others.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 17.—Charles N. Layman, 44-year-old water carrier, was held today on "suspicion of murder" for the fatal shooting yesterday of five of his fellow workers on a WPA project here and the wounding of two others. All were shot without warning as they dug in a ditch. Layman said they had "picked on" him.

Those who were killed yesterday were Lloyd E. Holden, 42; Peter M. Cokitt, 46; Harry Sell, 56; Lloyd Davis, 25. The fifth, Francis Sechrist, 33, died today.

Harold Johnston, 27, was in a serious condition. James Healy, 49, suffered a slight arm wound.

Cliff Gill, a witness, said Layman "ran along beside the ditch, which is about 10 feet wide and 10 feet deep, and began picking out his men. He was very cool and took his time."

Nearly 500 men on the job fled for cover as Layman fired.

He was captured two blocks away by radio patrolmen armed with sawed-off shotguns.

"Don't shoot," he cried. "I'm all through."

The officers hustled him away as cries of "lynch him" arose.

Dr. Will Lewis, WPA medical consultant, said Layman was "a victim of a mania, with hallucinations of persecution."

Police Capt. L. L. Curtis quoted Layman as saying: "I tried to injure the ones who had aggravated me. They did so many things to try to get me off relief—they would whistle at me and make funny noises. I decided if I couldn't go on working, I might as well take some of them with me before I starved to death."

He told police he bought the rifle in a pawn shop yesterday.

Illinois Power Rate Rise Dropped.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 17.—The Illinois Power & Light Corporation today withdrew its application before the State Commerce Commission for rate increases and announced instead it would file new schedules reducing some of its present rates, including those for domestic consumption. The increase had been asked for to compensate the firm for added expenses the State utility sales tax.

plies with such phrases as, "You asked for that, and I'll tell you." He was not shaken on the essential details of his direct testimony. The matter of the rewritten ledger appeared the most difficult to explain, but he stuck to his assertion that it was a correct record.

HUNTINGTON, IND., GETS STREET LIGHTS BACK

Privately Subscribed Fund Reopens City Plant—Fights With Power Company.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., Dec. 17.—Street lights were on again last night after several nights of darkness because of exhaustion of the municipal electric plant for the year 1935. Citizens subscribed a fund to keep the lights going until a new appropriation becomes available on Jan. 1.

Cutting off the street lights was incidental to the controversy between Mayor C. W. H. Bangs and the Northern Indiana Power Co., which serves electricity to the public in Huntington. For several months Mayor Bangs has been endeavoring to enlarge the municipal electric plant and extend service to the entire city, but the power company has fought him and last summer he spent several weeks in jail on a contempt citation for failure to obey a court order obtained by the power company.

Funds for maintenance of street lighting are appropriated annually by the City Council. The 1935 appropriation of $15,000 was exhausted several days ago. Mayor Bangs said the Indiana statute makes it a criminal offense for a municipality to incur an obligation for which funds have not been appropriated or to transfer municipal funds from one account to another. The attorney for the power company, he said, threatened city officials with prosecution if they violated the letter of the statute in any way. There is a surplus of $170,000 in the city waterworks fund, he said, and considerable sums in other funds, but in view of the power company's attitude these could not be drawn on even temporarily. It was then that the City Council decided to cut off the street lights.

The difficulty was overcome by organizing a private corporation to which citizens subscribed funds which will be used to purchase current from the municipal plant and to operate the street lights until Jan. 1.

Mayor Bangs said it has heretofore been the practice in Huntington and other Indiana cities, to transfer funds temporarily from surplus accounts to continue the operation of municipal departments for which appropriations have been exhausted.

The City Council, he said, provided a supplemental appropriation last October, but this was disallowed by the State Tax Board.

The practice has been for the city to appropriate funds to be used by the light plant to purchase steam from the municipal water works for the generation of electricity. By holding the city officials to the strict letter of the law the power company was able to stop the sale of steam to the light plant, although the waterworks fund had a large surplus.

Roosevelt to Blame for 1933 Bank Panic, Hoover Asserts

Such projects, he charged, were not employment measures so much as sociological experiments, "most of them already demonstrated failures. Priming the economic pump," he declared, "dries up the well of enterprise."

Relief Cost Compared.

Comparing the needs and the expenditures of the last year of the Hoover administration with those of the year ending last October, the former President said that in the former year there were 11,600,000 unemployed, and in the latter year, 11,000,000, a reduction of 600,000. But, he said, the cost of unemployment relief was $1,100,000,000 in the former year, and $3,000,000,000 in the latter year. In the former year, he said, less than 200 Federal officials were engaged in this work; he placed the present number at 140,000, and the overhead for their salaries and expenses at $400,000,000 or $500,000,000 a year.

Since the change in administration, Hoover said, "responsibility of local self-government has been diluted; we are becoming a nation of prayer wheels directed to Washington." This allusion seemed to escape the audience, few of whom were as familiar as the speaker with the Orient and its devices of devotion.

Four Proposals Offered.

"As the New Deal always demands alternative plans," the speaker said, "I offer them four." These, as he listed them, were:

"1. Stop these wasteful Federal public works projects; confine them to projects which meet the needs of the nation.
"2. Decentralize the administration of all other forms of relief. Turn them back to the states and local communities. Do it in joint co-operation with the Governors, Mayors, and county authorities.
"3. Against the voluntary services of American men and women on a non-partisan basis. Give such relief committees as they create the entire determination of how it should be done. Allot to the states less than one-half the present funds being spent in the relief. Require the local authorities to find from their local funds at least 5 per cent as a check on waste. Require the states to do its share. Discharge most of the Federal officials connected with these relief agencies. The unemployed will be better cared for than they are today.
"4. Do it now. That would go to assure a clean election. But it is more than that. It would relieve human distress which suffers enough without the poison of politics in its breast."

"We have a further obligation beyond relief to this ten million unemployed. True relief must come from honest productive jobs, not from public funds. Those jobs would return quickly if the currency were stabilized and this torrent of unnecessary expenditure were stopped and the budget were balanced, threatening influences removed and confidence in the future of American liberty restored. That would restore confidence in the future. It would relieve the threat of inflation which demoralizes all business and sets up false recoveries. It would start men building again for the future. It would bring into action the vast amount of improvement needed in housing and in machinery, now being worn out through seven years of obsolescence. It would set free the energies of new enterprise. These people on relief have suffered enough from having playboys take America apart to see how the wheels go round."

In Interest of All.

Declaring that "the administration of relief needs reform right now," Hoover said it was needed both in the interest of workers, taxpayers, present and future, and in the interest of those who are on relief.

The former President repeated assertions made in his Oakland and New York speeches, as to "Socialism by government in business competition with citizens," and wasteful spending and debt leading to a smash in inflation. He added that it was not too late to turn around, and read a newspaper clipping as to naming of a Los Angeles street as New Deal avenue, with the statement that, because it comes to a dead end, room has been arranged for turning around.

Party names were mentioned only two or three times in the speech. Once, having spoken of the present Democratic administration, Hoover corrected himself to say, "I mean the New Deal administration."

Republican Rally at Start. In its introductory phase, the meeting was a Republican rally. The John Marshall Club, which held the dinner, is composed of 100 Republican lawyers. William E. Buder, president of the club, called for "an aggressive, not a defensive" Republican campaign, and brought the first of a series of prolonged demonstrations for Hoover by calling him "the most distinguished leader of our party."

Grove W. Dalton, Republican State chairman, told of rallies held in eight congressional districts, where he said, "we got under the side of the New Dealers—we have no quarrel with the Democrats, we're just sorry for them." City Chairman Fred W. Pope said St. Louis would do its part in the Republican revival. Milton R. Stahl, making the presentation speech, closed five minutes before the time set for the beginning of the radio broadcast, 9 p. m., and the time was taken up with standing and cheering demonstration, which those at the speakers table kept going without much difficulty.

At the Speaker's Table. Ben S. Allen, Hoover's neighbor in Palo Alto, and the former President's consultant in his present activities, was at the speakers' table. He has the reputation of being able to brighten up a speech, but denied that he had performed that service as to last night's speech, saying that "the Chief" was capable of doing that for himself.

Others at the speakers' table were Buder, Stahl, Dalton, Pope, Arnold G. Stifel, former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, Judge William Dee Becker, Comptroller Louis Nolte, Chancellor George R. Throop, William H. Danforth, Frank E. Atwood, Lawrence M. Hyde, Walter W. Smith, Charles W. Holtcamp, A. L. Shapleigh, Sidney Maestre, Walter W. Head, Thomas F. McDonald, Joseph F. Holland, Daniel Bartlett, Luke E. Hart, Barak T. Mattingly, Rodney Fairfield, Roy Davis, George M. Tague, Walter L. Metcalfe, Clarence Barksdale, George Stemmer, Karol Kozogold, Charles Belknap, George Fittge, Ronald Foulis, Arch Shaw, Fred Stueck, J. L. Hamilton, Parker Woods, Ed Schneider and Sherman Landau.

Hoover Spends Hour at Zoo; Sees Animals Perform.

Former President Hoover spent an hour at the St. Louis Zoo yesterday afternoon as the guest of William H. Danforth, local cereal manufacturer. Hoover told Zoo Director George P. Vierheller after the visit that the St. Louis exhibits were among the best he had ever seen.

With Arnold G. Stifel, St. Louis broker, Danforth, Vierheller, police officers, newspaper reporters and photographers, Hoover stopped first at the primate house, where he smiled broadly at the antics of Sammy Billy, trained chimpanzee, and shook hands with the performers. The party then visited the large and small bear pits, the elephant house, the aviary and the antelope house, to watch the animals and birds at their afternoon feeding. At Vierheller's invitation, he fed a piece of apple to one of the large elephants.

Hoover Arrives in Chicago; to Leave for Home Tonight.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17. — Former President Herbert Hoover arrived today from St. Louis where he delivered his latest assault on the New Deal.

Hoover planned to leave by train at 9:45 p. m. tonight for Palo Alto, Cal.

TEXT OF HOOVER'S SPEECH BEFORE JOHN MARSHALL CLUB

country to the effect that relief to the unemployed originates in the New Deal and would end with the New Deal. Those in distress will not be misled. Whatever aid they receive comes not from any official or party. It comes out of the pockets of their fellow-citizens. It will not end as long as there is need.

The inevitable and driving purpose of any political bureaucracy is to use its powers to secure its jobs. The sudden appropriations to cities, counties and states were singularly timed to elections. And this is not the only method of making politics out of human misery.

Waste, Folly, Corruption.

Do you want more proofs of waste, folly, chiselers, and petty corruption? You know it in your own town, city or village. Read your own newspapers, whose columns periodically reek with accounts of disorganization and waste. Their editorials cry to heaven against the use, being made of relief for politics. If only the money taken from the taxpayers could go to those in distress there would be less cause for public indignation.

Gov. Smith said nobody would shoot Santa Claus. But the people of the United States will learn that many other things move around in the darkness besides Santa Claus.

The administration of relief needs reform right now. It needs it in the interest of good government. It needs it in the interest of the 85 per cent of our citizens who have to pay for it. They include everybody who works. The cost of these wastes and follies is collected by hidden taxes in every package that comes from the store. Or worse, we are laying it onto our children by debt. Reform is needed in the interest of the 15 per cent who are on relief, that they get better and more secure service. To the self-respecting Americans on relief these wastes and follies are a tragedy. They know it dissipates money they need. It delays their deliverance to a real job. The inspiration of relief comes from the heart, but its effectiveness must come from the head.

(The speaker then presented his four "alternative plans," the text of which appears in the news story of the dinner, elsewhere in today's Post-Dispatch.)

The speech closed with a plea to youth to "carry America on."

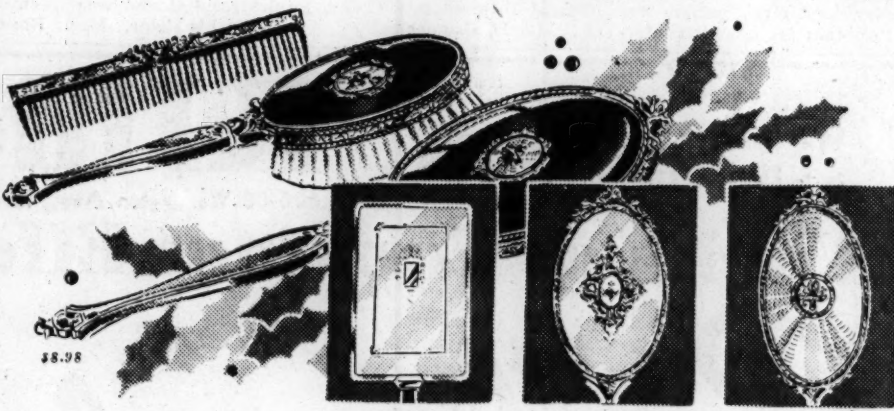

Missourian Gets Federal Post. WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — President Roosevelt today appointed Milton E. Carter of Kansas City, Mo. assistant to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, succeeding Wright Matthews of Texas, resigned. Carter takes office Jan. 1.

TWO TRUCKS OF LIQUOR SEIZED IN SOUTHERN KANSAS

One From St. Louis. Other From Belleville; False Declaration of Entry Into State Charged.

By the Associated Press.
WELLINGTON, Kan., Dec. 17.—
More than 812 cases of alcohol, assorted wines and whiskeys were confiscated by officers Sunday night, and four men were arrested, charged with possession and transportation of liquor. They pleaded not guilty.

Those held are G. R. Johnson and J. B. Williams of Ponca City, Ok., and Roy Vogt and C. C. McCombs, Blackwell, Ok.

Three agents of the State Department of Inspection and Registration said they followed two trucks nearly all day Sunday from Galena, Kan., where, at the port of entry, they declared their cargoes to be beer.
The trucks entered the State from Missouri about an hour apart.

they said, and were followed on suspicion that liquor was aboard and that part of it, at least, would be delivered in Kansas.
No delivery was made in the State, and the trucks were seized at the southern Kansas port of entry just before the transports would have crossed into Oklahoma.
Sheriff J. L. Harris of Sumner County said the law violation was in the false declaration of the shipment at Galena. One truck was consigned from Belleville, Ill., to Blackwell; the other from St. Louis to Ponca City.

SIX POLICEMEN SUSPENDED IN TAMPA FLOGGING INQUIRY

Mayor Wants to Know About Raid on House to Arrest Labor Organizer.

By the Associated Press.
TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 17.—Six policemen and a fireman were suspended last night by Mayor R. E. L.
Chancey as the grand jury investigated politics and gambling in Tampa in its inquiry into the death from flogging of Joseph Shoemaker, unemployed labor organizer.

The men, with one previously suspended, were involved in the arrest of Shoemaker, E. F. Poulnot and S.
D. Rogers, who were seized by a gang as they left police headquarters
after being questioned about alleged Communist activities.

Mayor Chancey said the officers were suspended "pending investigation" of their raid on a private house without a warrant to arrest Shoemaker and the others. The fireman, C. A. McCaskill, was identified by Tampa newspapers as one of six men "arrested" in the raid and booked at police headquarters as
"O. R. Sauls."

The suspended officers, in addition to McCaskill, are Sergeant C.
A. Brown, Bob L. Cappell, Frank Wyman, F. W. Switzer, D. H. Chiles and J. R. Bridges. Earlier the Mayor suspended C. W. Carlisle.
Mayor Chancey said he hoped "this action will not be taken by any one to indicate that I have any concrete information that would justify me in believing these men, or any of them, actually had any complicity in the flogging. When the investigation is complete, those who are found without blame will be reinstated."

Wood Netherland Says Reduction in Interest Rate on Bank Loans Is in Order.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Wood Netherland, vice-president of the Mer-

Co. of St. Louis, told Illinois bankers yesterday that lower interest rates on bank loans were in order.
He spoke before groups 1, 2 and 3 of the Illinois Bankers' Association.
"Country banks and others are trying to obtain far too high interest rates," Netherland said. "In the past the borrower has paid all our costs. Now we have reduced interest on savings and put in service charges, and it seems to me we must pass this on to the borrowers. Manifestly we cannot expect to have our expense cut down on one end and still expect to exact all the traffic will bear."

Merryle Stanley Ruker of Columbia University predicted an expansion of 10 per cent in general business in 1936. He said he based his prediction on the improved relationship between farm and other prices.
J. R. Cosgrove, president of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of St. Louis, also spoke.

PROWLER SHOT, KILLED IN FLIGHT FROM DEPUTIES

County Officers Fire When Negro Warns Them to Halt and Reaches Toward Coat Pocket.

Will Flanders, a Negro, 44 years old, was shot and killed last night by Deputy Sheriff Frank Lewis and Deputy Constable Harry Yow in the $600 block of Graceland avenue.
Overland, where the officers had gone in search of a prowler reported in the neighborhood.
Identification of Flanders was established through finger prints today. He had been arrested occasionally in the county for stealing chickens. Various St. Louis addresses are listed in reports of his arrests.

As the officers closed in on Flanders, he called to them: "Don't come toward me!" and reached for his right-hand coat pocket. Both officers fired. Flanders, wounded twice in the chest and once in the right leg, died almost immediately.
At Dr. L. E. Tiernon's Hospital in Pine Lawn, where he was pronounced dead, a loaded .45-caliber automatic pistol and a flashlight were found in his pockets. In running from the officers he had dropped a bundle of empty gun-ny sacks.

When Lewis and Yow first sighted Flanders he was running out of a back yard. Yow got out of the automobile and followed him on foot, while Lewis drove on ahead and turned the car around so that its headlights shone on the fleeing man. He was within about 40 feet of Lewis, with Yow in close pursuit, when the shots were fired.

tion of slot machines.

Relief Study of Causes of Poverty In Six Rural "Problem Areas"

Report Blames "Frontier Philosophy of Individual Freedom" for "Stranded Communities, Bankrupt Farmers and Unemployment."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — A result of a survey of six rural "problem areas" were made public today by Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator.

Investigators studied 10,771 families in 65 counties in 23 States. They said the conditions they found were representative of areas which furnish half of the farm families on relief.

"The frontier philosophy which assumed that the individual, if given complete freedom, would pursue an economic course that was to the best interests of society, led to the present dilemma of stranded communities, bankrupt farmers and wide-spread unemployment," the report said.

"The rapid and heedless exploitation of the human and natural resources in these areas bears tragic witness to the fruits of such a philosophy."

Advocating Federal help, the report said 20 per cent of the relief families in the areas were incapable of self-support, 15 per cent could be rehabilitated by financial help and supervision, and 65 per cent would require only temporary financial aid.

The report included data which Hopkins said had been used in carrying out Federal emergency relief programs, and which now has been taken over by the resettlement administration.

Areas Investigated.

The six areas, and suggested rehabilitation methods: Appalachian—Ozark (parts of Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia) — Better land needed and supplementary employment. Over-population to "be alleviated only through emigration, education and the development of a higher standard of living."

Lake States cut-over timber land (parts of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin) — Zoning regulation, reforestation, stranded mining population to be moved or new kinds of industrial employment developed.

Short grass spring wheat (parts of Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota) and short grass winter wheat (parts of Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas) — only land suitable for cultivation should be farmed, with restrictions on cultivation where rainfall is small as the 1934 drought was the primary cause. Some of the present surplus population "will be forced to emigrate."

Western cotton belt (parts of Oklahoma and Texas) and Eastern cotton belt (parts of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina) — Troubles aggravated by breakdown of the share-cropper system, with primary problems the "readjustment of the system of farm management whereby greater security will be afforded farm tenants and laborers."

Better Schooling Needed.

Particularly in the Southeast, the report said better schooling should be provided for farm families.

"As long as so large a proportion of the poorer classes lack sufficient education to manage intelligently their own affairs, there will be need of public relief and social case work," the report said. "It would seem a good investment of funds to maintain adequate school facilities, with Federal aid if necessary, as partial insurance against Federal relief in the future."

The report said total relief expenditures in the six areas were $202,797,000 between April 1, 1933, and Nov. 1, 1934, averaging $220 for each family on the dole. Fifteen per cent of the 4,484,257 families living in the areas were on direct relief.

In the two cotton areas the proportion on relief was only 12 per cent, but the report said these nevertheless were "problem areas because of the share-cropper system" and the dependence of most non-farmers, on cotton or a decadent lumbering industry.

The report noted that three-fourths of all Negro farmers were in the two cotton belts and that poor farm land was one of the chief causes for the heavy relief population.

GOVERNORS OF FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS MEET

Peak Bank Reserves Have Mounted to $3,310,000,000 in Excess of Requirements.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — The 12 Federal Reserve Bank Governors gathered today as the system's open market committee which is charged with advising the Reserve banks on buying or selling Federal securities. Such transactions are an agency of credit control. The use of controls has been under discussion for several weeks. The Reserve Board contends that no step is necessary now.

Peak bank reserves have mounted to $3,310,000,000 in excess of legal requirements.

The sale of Government bonds to member banks, however, has been recommended to the Reserve banks by the Federal Advisory Council as a means of reducing reserves. This council is made up of business men in the 12 Reserve districts.

The board has the authority to increase the amount of required reserves, thus removing some of the excess from the credit picture. It is said to believe that by this move, or the imposition of stricter margin requirements for stock market transactions, the brakes may be applied when necessary.

WOMAN EXPLAINS $19,000 GIVEN HER BY NATHAN FRANK

Mrs. Hansel, Suing His Estate, Testifies She Expended Money for Others at His Direction.

SAYS SHE GOT NONE OF IT FOR HERSELF

Questioned, She Declares Millionaire Once Lent Her $300 but She Paid It Back.

Cross-examination of Mrs. Esther Anna Hansel, 20 Lewis place, in her suit for $44,000 against the estate of Nathan Frank, millionaire bachelor and former Congressman, was continued today before a jury in Circuit Judge O'Neill Ryan's court.

The trial, which was expected by counsel to require about a week, opened yesterday, with Mrs. Hansel, wife of Dr. French K. Hansel, as the first witness. An attractive woman with light brown hair, blue eyes, frequent smile and trace of Southern accent, she wore a taffeta hat, lynx-trimmed coat and rhinestone trimmed dress, all of black.

William K. Gentry, of counsel for the estate, remarked to the jury in an opening statement that the plaintiff had a habit of smiling and ingratiating herself.

Ordinarily a plaintiff against an estate is not a competent witness, but the defense waived application of that rule by taking her deposition.

F. Z. Salomon a Witness.
Fred Z. Salomon, general manager of the Famous-Barr Department Store, testified today that Mrs. Hansel's financial responsibility, in connection with purchases charged at the store, and that Frank had said he had her property in his possession. While he indicated Mrs. Hansel's purchases were billed to her, he said on cross-examination that half a dozen women charged goods on Frank's account, but he could not recall their names.

Salomon said he first knew Mrs. Hansel as a bond salesman and that Frank had told him she was a relative of an old friend of Frank and a member of a good family. The witness declared that Frank was respectful in speaking of Mrs. Hansel.

The claim was for $39,000 alleged to have been invested for Mrs. Hansel by Frank, who died in April, 1931, and for $5,000 asserted to be due her as commission in a University City real estate deal.

Where She Got Jewelry.
Mrs. Hansel testified today as to the source of diamond jewelry valued at $8,000, which she had invested in an interest in Oklahoma oil property that eventually yielded her $34,000, she said. Besides an engagement ring from Claude Lyle, her former husband, she related, she was given a brooch as a wedding gift by his brother, Albert Lyle and later Albert Lyle gave her a four-carat diamond, ring as a present. In addition, she said, he gave her a pair of diamond earrings, which she never wore, her ears not being pierced, for joining with her husband in signing a deed to their home in 1915 or 1916.

Except for the engagement ring and brooch, the plaintiff went on, she used to carry all the jewelry in a bag attached to her underclothing; and she kept them with her when she slept.

Shows Divorce Petition.
An authenticated copy of the petition by which she obtained a divorce in Mississippi in 1924 was shown Mrs. Hansel by Jacob M. Lashly of defense counsel. In it she charged Lyle with deserting her in April, 1921. Weeping, she asked if it was necessary to go into her past marital experience. Judge Ryan ruled the inquiry might be made. She said, in response to further questions, that Lyle suffered from tuberculosis and went from Tulsa, Ok., to Albuquerque, N. M., in 1921, telling her she was too young to live with a person with his ailment, and that if she would not get a divorce he would.

Reminded that she had testified for the plaintiff in an unsuccessful contest of Frank's will, Mrs. Hansel said she had gone to court in obedience to a subpoena, not knowing the effort was to break the will, and she declared she had no desire to break it, as she had helped Frank prepare it.

Stubs of Checks for $19,815.
Attorney Lashly exhibited stubs of checks totaling $19,815, purported to have been drawn by Frank in favor of Mrs. Hansel in a four-year period, including $24,96 in 1923, $44,67 in 1924, $62,77 in 1925 and $65,75 in 1926.

She testified the 1923 checks were all drawn for the purpose of having her pay bills of other women acquaintances of Frank at stores or for buying automobile tires or other things for persons in straitened circumstances whom he knew, where Frank did not want to appear as making the payments. She declared that she did not get a penny of this money for herself and that the only money she received for herself in 1923 was a $300 loan which she repaid.

Questioned by the defense lawyer and the Judge, Mrs. Hansel expressed the belief that there was nothing improper in the relations between Frank and the women whose dress and underclothing bills she paid for him. (Frank, she explained, would listen to hard-luck stories and was soft-hearted toward persons such as a "red-headed man" from Chicago, for whom she said he bought one dress for $80 and another for $90.)

As to the checks for 1924-26, Mrs. Hansel said she had no records of investments in these or other years, and could not be sure whether the sums mentioned were entirely for other persons' accounts or included remittances of the income on her investments, which, she added, had averaged $238 a month, including $200 a month, at 8 per cent, on a mortgage. Frank, she said, continued paying bills of the variety she had mentioned until his death.

Starting the cross-examination yesterday, the defense inquired whether Mrs. Hansel had called on the executors of the estate, Louis B. Sher, Edwin B. Meissner and Mrs. Grace Greenhall, about her claim. She said she had done so, telling them that Frank had a $30,000 mortgage, $4000 in mortgage bonds and $5000 in municipal bonds in an envelope, belonging to her, but they told her they had not seen the envelope or the investments. The executors had written her about a $2000 note she had executed at the First National Bank, indorsed by Frank and her husband, she related, and she had her husband reply.

Examined first by her own attorney, George B. Logan, Mrs. Hansel told about a trust fund to receive her and her husband's income, established June 9, 1930, for a year, at Frank's behest, with Victor Packman, a lawyer associated with Frank, as trustee. This was set up, she said, after she had asked Frank for interest on her investments and he told her he was going to continue looking after her property. "My husband couldn't throw it away," Frank, she declared, assured her he would turn over the investments to her upon expiration of the trust, if he was satisfied with Dr. Hansel, but Frank died in the meantime.

ONE-TENTH OF 1 PCT. ON CITY'S DEPOSITS

New Low Interest Rate Set in Bids From 9 Banks on $8,600,000 Funds.

A new low rate of interest for the city's bank deposits—1-10 of 1 per cent—was established by bids from nine banks accepted yesterday by the Municipal Fund Commission. For the last year the rate was 1/2 of 1 per cent, while a peak in recent times was passed in 1929, when 2 1/2 per cent was paid on time deposits and 2 3/4 per cent on daily balances.

The bids, for the year starting yesterday, offered to pay interest on an aggregate of only $8,600,000 in deposits, whereas the city has in its bank accounts now about $13,500,000 and will have early in 1936 from $18,000,000 to $20,000,000. No interest will be paid on the excess. Bankers have told city officials the inactivity of the money market was to blame for the low interest.

Bids on daily balances, together with the maximums on which interest will be paid, were: First National Bank, $2,000,000; Mississippi Valley Trust Co., $1,500,000; Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., $1,500,000; Boatmen's National Bank, $1,250,000; Telegraphers' National Bank, $1,000,000; Tower Grove Bank, $500,000; Manufacturers' Bank & Trust Co., $300,000; United Bank & Trust Co., $300,000.

In addition, Mutual Bank & Trust Co. offered to pay on six-month time deposits of $250,000. Security National Bank, Savings & Trust Co., which was among the city depositories in the last year, did not bid again. The allotment of deposits among the bidders will be made by the commission, consisting of Acting Mayor William L. Mason, Comptroller Louis Nolte and City Treasurer Henry C. Menne.

GOVERNMENT SURVEY SHOWS MEAT PRICES ARE LOWER

Pork Down 5 to 10 Per Cent From High Levels of Last September.

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Retail meat prices today were in some instances from 10 to 17 per cent lower than in September.

This sharp paring in the cost of pork, beef, veal and lamb was disclosed in the latest Government figures on big city retail prices. New York and Chicago statistics formed the basis of the report, but the reduction, packers' sources said, has been general throughout the nation, with prices in the East higher than elsewhere.

Pork, comparatively more expensive than other meat during the summer, had dropped 5 to 10 per cent from high levels of September when the survey was made Nov. 30. Beef cuts had declined 4 to 17 per cent, veal prices were unchanged to 8 per cent lower and lamb quotations were unchanged to 6 per cent lower.

Most trade authorities agreed that declining pork prices were influenced by a mild increase in hog receipts during the last two months, which saw market prices reduced more than $2 a hundred pounds.

JUSTICES HEAR AAA DEFENDED IN RICE MILLS' CASE

Federal Counsel Argues Processors Should Pay Tax, Then Sue, but Not Seek Injunction.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Defending the amended Agricultural Adjustment Act as constitutional, Assistant Attorney-General Frank J. Wideman contended in the Supreme Court today that eight Louisiana rice millers had proceeded improperly in attacking it.

Instead of seeking an injunction against the collection of processing taxes, he argued, they should have paid the taxes and then sued for recovery if convinced the law violated their rights.

John P. Bullington, attorney for the millers, contended that an injunction was necessary because the "Government can withdraw its consent to be sued."

Chief Justice Hughes asked if the law did not provide that money received by the collector of Internal Revenue should go into the Treasury and that the United States would pay judgments against the collector. Bullington said the act so provided but the millers could not presume Congress would appropriate sufficient money.

"Can this court impute to Congress a refusal to make a refund?" asked Hughes. "Are we not bound to assume that Congress would appropriate this money?" "Perhaps you are," the attorney replied.

Following Bullington, Wideman detailed the Government's position in the differences over procedure.

"General Welfare" Plea. Wideman used only one of the two hours allowed him. Justification for the statute, he insisted, was found in the needs of the times and the "general welfare" clause of the fundamental charter.

"If the writers of the Constitution had any purpose in mind when that clause was conceived and written into the organic law of the land, what could more clearly amplify their thoughts than the operation of this law to meet these needs?" asked Wideman.

"Our opponents are pleased to say that we would substitute the word 'regimentation' for 'freedom.' But the word 'freedom' does not mean 'license' to continue on the well trod road of economic advantage, nor does it mean futility to legislate on the principle of the greatest good to the greatest number."

Concluding on behalf of the millers, Homer L. Bruce of Houston said farmers had to sign Government contracts to get benefit payments in return for curtailing acreage under AAA.

"The farmer who is in gets a bonus and the man who is out does not get one," asked Justice Sutherland. "That's right," the attorney replied.

The millers contend that the recently enacted AAA amendments, as well as the original AAA, are unconstitutional. The original legislation provided for the payment of benefits to farmers, financed through processing taxes. The amendments were intended to meet possible legal objections and to ratify actions already taken by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

In addition, the amendments require that should processors sue to recover taxes, they must show that the levies were absorbed and not passed on to consumers or back to producers.

Bullington contended in his argument yesterday it was impossible to show whether the taxes actually had been passed on, saying: "There is no way except through guess work or arbitrary figures."

Justice Stone asked if the millers might not be required to pay unless they could show they were being damaged. "We either have to pay $52,000 or go to jail," Bullington replied.

"You could pay the money and then sue to get it back," Stone suggested. "You'd go up against a stone wall," Bullington retorted.

Suggestion by Hughes.

Chief Justice Hughes suggested the millers might attack the act itself as unconstitutional, and if successful, sue for recovery of taxes.

Justice Brandeis asked for Bullington's opinion as to the Government's contention that payment should precede litigation.

"Our remedy at law to get the money back is highly questionable," the lawyer said, adding that he thought an injunction to restrain collection of the taxes was the best procedure.

When he said he thought valid the requirement that processors show they had paid the taxes, Justice McReynolds commented: "It looks like you are giving your case away."

A surprise disclosure of yesterday was that the Supreme Court would reconvene Jan. 6 instead of Jan. 13 after its holiday recess. The decision to take only a two-week recess was reached, it was reported, at last Saturday's conference of the justices. The reason was not given, but some persons commented that it might permit a final ruling a week earlier than expected on the AAA, the Bankhead law and the Tennessee Valley Act.

DANGER ACQUITTED OF MURDER

Testifies She Shot Common Law Husband During Beating.
By the Associated Press.
NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 17.—A jury in Corporation Court freed Betty White, 24-year-old carnival dancer, last night of a charge of murdering her common-law husband, Thomas Holloman, 32, carnival operator, in a Norfolk hotel.

She pleaded self-defense. She told the court that she shot Holloman, known to her as William Williams, as he was advancing on her to finish a beating he had started a few minutes before.

SUSPECT AGAIN NAMED IN MURDER OF EDITOR

Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld Reported Identified by Witness Who Fled.

By the Associated Press.
MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 17.—Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld, was reported yesterday by Wesley Andresch, 36-year-old salesman, as the man who shot and killed Walter W. Liggett, editor of a weekly journal of comment, the night of Dec. 9.

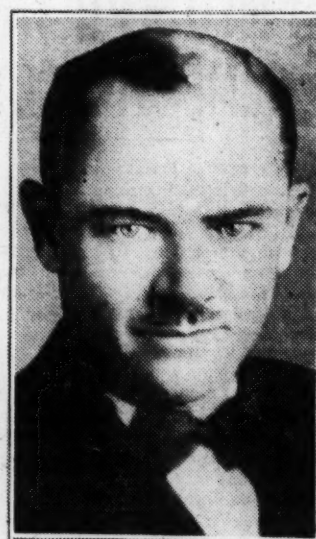

Mrs. Liggett, the widow of the murdered man, had previously identified Blumenfeld as her husband's assassin. Attorney-General H. H. Peterson expressed the hope that a third eye-witness could be found before tomorrow to bolster evidence now built around the stories of Mrs. Liggett and Andresch. The grand jury will convene tomorrow to consider the Liggett case.

Peterson would not name the third witness nor would he say where Andresch was held incommunicado under police protection. Andresch was found Sunday on his father's farm at Kimball, Minn., where he had fled two days after the murder of Liggett. It was reported that the killer's car almost struck Andresch just before Liggett was shot down.

Little significance was attached by investigators to reports that a note, attached to a brick, was thrown through a window of the home of Dave Garfinkel, a Blumenfeld abili witness. The reports said the note warned Garfinkel, a barber, to refrain from appearing in Blumenfeld's behalf. Garfinkel told police that Blumenfeld was in his shop at the time of the killing.

Whether any discrepancies were found in the stories of Blumenfeld's 21 abili witnesses, was not disclosed by Peter Neilson, Assistant County

WESLEY ANDRESCH.

Attorney, who questioned them last night, they were rounded up following Andresch's reported identification.

Previously the abili witnesses had accounted for Blumenfeld's movements at approximately the time of the killing. Blumenfeld has been in custody without charge since Dec. 9. Mrs. Liggett has not signed a complaint against him.

OMAHA SPOKESMEN TESTIFY AT RIVER-RAIL RATE HEARING

Waterways Chairman Says Equitable Joint Schedule Would Benefit Nebraska Shippers.

The absence of general joint rail and barge rates to and from Omaha, Neb., has proved detrimental to the city's business, W. R. Watson, retired newspaper editor and chairman of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce Waterways Committee, testified yesterday at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on rail and barge transportation rates at Hotel Coronado.

The nine-foot channel in the Missouri River from its mouth to Sioux City, Ia., which is nearly completed, he said, should prove favorable to Omaha shippers, provided, he added, equitable river-rail rates are established. Watson's testimony was given following objections by Walter M. Wharton, manager of the traffic department of the Omaha chamber, who told Examiner John H. Howell he had been the only one authorized to speak for the Omaha Chamber of Commerce.

Two traffic managers for Omaha manufacturing companies said their firms could compete more successfully with Eastern concerns if the scope of the joint rates was extended. The hearing, in its second week, is on application of railroads for a general revision of joint river-rail rates. Officers of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and firms testified at the hearing today.

GEERS ATTACKS MOTION FOR SPECIAL PROSECUTOR

State's Attorney Files Reply; Denies Hindering Prosecution of Dog Track Cases.

State's Attorney Lester Geers has filed in Circuit Court at 22d wardville a motion denying he failed or hindered prosecution of six indictments in the 1931 investigation of the Madison Kennel Club. This motion was filed in the names of two members of a special grand jury that returned the indictments.

JUDGE FARIS ORDERS FRISCO TO PAY $20,444 JUDGMENT

Also Tells Trustees to Pay 6 Pct. Interest on Claim of Injured Ex-Employee.
Federal Judge Charles B. Faris, who, although retired, is continuing to administer the affairs of the bankrupt Frisco Railroad, yesterday ordered the trustees in bankruptcy to pay a judgment for $20,444 plus 6 per cent interest since Nov. 22, 1932, to J. H. McCommon, a former employee of the railroad. McCommon was permanently injured while helping to clear up a wreck on the railroad at Van Buren, Ark., in August, 1931. He obtained his judgment in 1932 in Arkansas. The judgment was confirmed by the Arkansas Supreme Court and was refused a review by the United States Supreme Court. After the railroad went into bankruptcy, Judge Davis appointed John T. Harding of Kansas City as special commissioner to examine the case. Harding recommended that the claim be paid in full, pointing out that it was a preferred claim under the bankruptcy laws and that Arkansas statutes give judgment holders a lien on the roadbed.

RED SOX OBTAIN HEINE MANUSH IN DEAL WITH SENATORS

CARL REYNOLDS AND JOHNSON GO TO WASHINGTON IN THE TRADE

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Washington Senators today traded outfielder Heine Manush to the Boston Red Sox for outfielders Roy Johnson and Carl Reynolds.
Owner Clark Griffith of the Senators said it was a straight swap with no cash involved.
Griffith, already possessing outfield strength had held out for a pitcher in return for Manush but finally made the swap for the outfielders when the Red Sox refused to send along a hurler. The Senators now have eight outfielders but have failed to make a single change in their pitching staff, which was one of the poorest in the American League last season.
It has long been known that Manush felt he could do better in another location. A strong hitter when the Senators won the pennant in 1933, Manush fell down the last two years. In Johnson, Griffith feels he has a player at least Heine's equal and in Reynolds one of the game's best "spring hitters." They also add to Griffith's potential trading material.
Reynolds now has been with four major league clubs and with the Senators twice. Manush previously had played with Detroit and St. Louis.
Both Reynolds and Johnson are four years younger than the 35-year-old Manush. Manush hit only .273 last season while Johnson hit .315 and Reynolds .270.

NOTRE DAME BASKET TEAM GAINS SEVENTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Purdue and Illinois, which shared the 1935 Big Ten basketball title with Wisconsin, will seek their third straight victory of the practice season tonight against Xavier and De Pauw, respectively.
The Bollermakers, victorious over Western Michigan—State Teachers and De Paul, tackle Xavier at Cincinnati, Illinois, which defeated St. Louis University and Wabash in previous starts, entertains De Pauw at Champaign.
Notre Dame gleaned a little revenge from Northwestern last night for the Wildcats' football victory by scoring a 46-29 triumph on the South Bend floor. It was Notre Dame's seventh straight victory and Northwestern's first defeat in three starts.

Ohio State and Indiana, however, gave the Big Ten an edge on the evening's business. The Buckeyes swamped Muskingum, 50 to 25, while the Hoosiers trounced Miami of Oxford, 40, 41 to 15.

Louis Has Earned $370,000 In 18 Months; His 26 Bouts Averaged 13 1-2 Minutes Each

By W. J. McGoogan.

It has taken Joe Louis a total of 118 rounds in his professional boxing career to score 22 knockouts and to win four other contests on decisions. And all of this in just about 18 months.

Joe's fights have averaged 4 1-2 rounds each (about 13 1-2 minutes fighting time), the longest 10 rounds and the shortest one round.

For all of this he has received more than $370,000. A total of 310,200 persons have attended the bouts and the gates have grossed $1,776,563.

That's quite a record for a boy, 21 years of age who in the spring of 1934 first attained national prominence when he won the national amateur light heavyweight championship in The Arena.

At that time Joe was unknown outside the amateur ranks and weighed less than 175 pounds. When he vaulted suddenly into the heavyweight professional picture many critics thought that he had been brought along too fast, that artificial means had been used to build up his weight for it was astonishing how quickly he advanced to more than 190 pounds and for his last bout, with Paulino, he weighed a little more than 200 pounds.

Easy Subject for His Handlers. But those who had to do with his physical build-up must have known what to feed him because his weight is composed of good, sound muscle and there is no fat on him. So far he has had little or no trouble keeping in condition and it is hardly likely that he will have for a few years.

There is another side to the picture, however, which is to cause the Louis camp some trouble before long. He is going to run out of opponents.

He has four fights in view. He is expected to meet Isador Gastanaga in Havana, Dec. 29. Charley Retzlaff in Chicago, Jan. 27, and Max Schmeling next June. After that there remains Champion Jim Braddock and assuming that bout takes place next September and Louis wins them all as now seems probable, where does he go from there?

He has proved himself so vastly superior to every man he has fought that no return bout would seem attractive unless it be with Carnera. But Louis bewildered the Italian and knocked him out in six rounds. Carnera was as good that night as he will ever be so there seems little reason to book him again.

And there is no new material on the horizon right now with enough artillery to give Louis a battle.

Marek a Possibility. Max Marek holds a point verdict over Louis, gained in the national amateur tournament in Boston in 1933. But Marek, unlike Louis, has failed to put on weight. He scales only a little more than 180 now and in his bout with Joe Lippis in New York last week there was no evidence that he had kept pace with Louis in the development of his punch or boxing skill.

Joe won't have much to worry about.

Coast League to Use Playoff Plan To Decide Winner

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—DIRECTORS of the Pacific Coast Baseball League voted at a meeting yesterday to adopt a playoff plan for awarding the 1936 championship.

The plan, patterned after one now in use in the International League, American Association and other circuits, will have the top four at the end of the regular schedule meet in an elimination series.

Opening date for the next season was set for March 28, one of the earliest openings in the 32-year history of the league. The regular 24-week schedule will close Sept. 13, with the playoff immediately after.

The new plan eliminates the split season.

WISCONSIN STARS TO COMPETE IN SILVER SKATES

By the Associated Press.

THE ranks of notables in the Silver Skates ice carnival, to be held at the Arena, Dec. 29, has been swelled with the entry of Eugene Lamb, Wisconsin Senior Champion, and Miss Eleanor Thiel, Chicago Silver Skates champion.

The entry of Lamb gives the St. Louis annual ice carnival three left State champions and a national champion, in addition to outstanding skaters from Missouri. The Wisconsin champion is a brother of Du Lamb, who is a member of the Olympic team which will represent the United States in the winter games in Germany.

Detroit is sending its Michigan senior champion, Bud Wright; Minneapolis will be represented by Pat Maloney, intermediate champion, while Wisconsin will have still another champion, Marvin Swanson, national open titleholder, in one of the greatest Silver Skates carnivals ever held here.

Miss Thiel has been a popular entry in previous Silver Skates championships here and this year is out to win the women's title, following her championship in the Chicago Silver Skates last winter. She will find considerable competition coming from Madeline Horn, former North American titleholder, and the host of St. Louis entries.

Rabinowitz and Louis Mauer were also contributors.

FLYERS SEEK SEVENTH ROAD TRIUMPH IN GAME TONIGHT

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 17.—Coach Alex McPherson and his high flying Flyers, leading the race for the American Hockey Association flag by a wide margin, were here today seeking their fourth successive victory and to keep intact their very unusual record of not having lost a game on the road. The Flyers have won six road contests.

Both reverses the St. Louis club has suffered have been at home, while they have swept the seven games played abroad. They defeated the Saints, 2 to 0, in the only game between the clubs this season.

However, St. Paul has a good team. They won the playoffs between the Flyers, winners of the Association flag last season, and themselves, winners of the Central League pennant and this year through an arrangement with the Chicago Blackhawks they have a stronger team as St. Paul has a farm agreement with the major league team.

Coach McPherson is tied with Vic Desjardins of Tulsa for high scorer in the league with 12 points, representing five goals and seven assists.

The Flyers as a whole have counted 36 goals to 17 for their opponents and this morning were 10 points or five full games ahead of St. Paul, which is in second place.

Following tonight's contest the Flyers move to Kansas City for a match Thursday, then return to St. Louis to oppose St. Paul at the Arena Friday night and again next Sunday, making five games in eight days for them.

GREEN BAY ELEVEN WILL PLAY THREE GAMES ON THE COAST

By the Associated Press.

GREEN BAY, Wis., Dec. 17.—The Green Bay Packers of the National Professional Football League completed arrangements today for three major games in California during January.

Coach E. L. Lambeau said details will be arranged later with officials of the American Legion Football League of Los Angeles and the Knights of Columbus of San Francisco. A squad of 24 Packers will make the trip by automobile. Several players already are on the coast.

SHAW-STEPHENS WILL MEET INDIANA FIVE

By the Associated Press.

ANOTHER new team has been added to the Shaw-Stephens American Legion girls' basketball schedule. This club, the La Fendrich girls of Evansville, Ind., will make its first appearance here next Sunday afternoon in the feature of the weekly tripeheader at the Maplewood Senior High School gymnasium.

Coach Eddie Davidson, in preparing for next Sunday's game, has found that he has three players instead of just one on the injured list following the Chicago battle.

Alois Mertensmeyer and Mary Rucker, injured in the first game of the season, again sprained their left ankle in practice Saturday night and also may miss next Sunday's battle.

WRAVS COLUMN

The Greatest Comeback.

WHEN the vote on the year's greatest "comeback" pro or amateur, man or animal, is concluded, the ballot will probably be close on the following candidates:
Lefty Grove, Helen Willis, Jimmy Braddock and the race horse Discovery.

There are remarkable features about each of these, but we think the case of the Grove probably will excite the widest attention.

When Grove was sold to the Red Sox three winters ago the old soupbone was reported "gone." The next season seemed to prove it. Lefty, far from being the standout pitcher of previous years, was just a fifty-fifty thrower, and not a very busy one at that. He ended the campaign with eight victories and eight defeats—not much for the man who set the world afire with his previous successes.

It was conceded that Yawkey had thrown $125,000 away on a 35-year-old hasbeen. Nothing was expected of him when the 1935 season began, although Grove insisted he was himself once more.

He proved it. He came back, winning 20 victories for a club that was far from being a whirlwind on attack and which could not give him proper run-getting support. With a heavy-hitting team he might have won 25 games, or more.

Backing up this view is the fact that the efficiency—low average—earned runs per game—Grove led all the rest! His figure was approximately 2.75.

And that we take it is coming back 100 per cent.

Little Poker Face Returns.

HELEN WILLIS' success at Wimbledon was almost equally spectacular, although despite her victory it was plain that she was below the peak of her best yet.

Coming back after two idle seasons she really achieved a remarkable success in beating Helen Jacobs in the Wimbledon final, proving her gameness as well as her return to form.

However, her failure to compete in the National Championships somewhat dimmed her luster and also the appreciation of her admirers. These felt that, as a sporting gesture she owed Helen Jacobs another chance to vindicate herself. This she did not grant.

The Case of Braddock.

JIMMY BRADDOCK's victory over Max Baer in the heavyweight ring championship was perhaps the most astounding since the two fought in 1936. But that's all it was—a surprise.

That Braddock is no longer a hasbeen light-heavyweight and is really of championship mettle still remains to be demonstrated.

Subsequent events have proved that the two fights which brought Jimmy popularity, those with Art Lasky and Baer, were more or less tainted.

Braddock, for example, got Jimmy Johnson's attention by outpointing Art Lasky, who was supposed to be one of the real dangerous candidates for heavyweight ring honors. But, after Braddock beat him, Lasky was knocked out twice, once by Ford Smith, then almost unknown, and the future, however, may tell a different story. Among the probable Kentucky Derby candidates who will travel for the 1936 Florida event at one and one-eighth miles are Tintagel, winner of the Belmont Futurity, and Brevity, Bright Plumage, Cross Bow II, Bow and Arrow, Maeriel and the winner of the Kentucky Derby.

These represent famous stables and any one of them may turn up as the leading three-year-olds of the 1936 campaign.

Max Baer Says Schmeling Will Be First Man to Defeat Louis

FAIROAKS, Cal., Dec. 17.—An answer to fistiana's question No. 1—"Who is going to stop Joe Louis?"—was furnished today by Max Baer, ex-heavyweight champion of the world, in an exclusive interview with International News Service.

"Who is it, Max, Jimmy Braddock, the present champ?" Baer was asked as a feeler.

"Gosh, no," replied Max. "Louis will polish off Braddock as soon as he wants to. In round one—or in round two."

"Then who is it?"

"Max Schmeling—and I'll tell you why. Schmeling is still young. He's only 29; he doesn't drink or smoke; he's not an old man like Paulino. I know why you can't hand Louis anything for beating old Paulino. . . . Gosh, that of Baer was an old man when I fought him five years ago."

"Schmeling will walk right into Louis with short punches, just like Louis walked into me and beat me. Schmeling won't back up and I feel sure he'll plant one on Louis' chin—and Louis will go down for the count."

The first person to take issue with Baer was his own manager, Ancil Hoffman, who owns a 40-acre ranch here where Baer is a "gentleman farmer," and his bride, the former Mary Ellen Sullivan of Washington, D. C., delights in being a "farmer's wife."

"Nobody is going to beat Louis," interposed Hoffman, who is grooming Max for a new fling at the motion pictures and who will start Buddy Baer, Max's "little brother," on a real campaign toward the heavyweight title next year.

Zion Beats St. Matthew, 58-18

Zion's basketball team rang up 58 points to St. Matthew's 18 as it scored its fifth consecutive victory in the North Side Walther Basketball Association. Pilgrim trounced Bethany, 61-22. Ebenezer took a 30-19 triumph from St. Jacob, and St. Paul defeated Bethlehem, 21-17.

Status of M. U. Coaches May Be Decided Jan. 3

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 17.—Announcement by President Frederick A. Middlebush that the University of Missouri board of curators will meet here Friday, Jan. 3, rounded the possibility today that the contracts of Don Faurot and his new deal athletic regime will be considered at that time.

There was nothing in President Middlebush's announcement indicating what business the curators will handle, but the one-year contracts of Faurot and his staff expire Jan. 1.

The executive board of curators might act on renewal of the contracts, but no meeting of the board has been set for now, and the time for the full board meeting has been set.

The fact that Faurot, Head Track Coach Chaucney Simpson, Assistant Coach Jack Matthews, and the four-man coaching crew may come in for boosts in salary made it probable that the matter would come before the full board.

The Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics and the Alumni Advisory Committee on Athletics already have recommended to the board of curators that Faurot and his assistants be retained. The Committee on Intercollegiate Athletics is reported to have favored the salaries for at least part of the staff.

HELEN WILLIS ON TOP IN VOTE ON OUTSTANDING WOMAN ATHLETE

(This is the second of a series detailing results of the annual Associated Press sports poll.)

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—For her remarkable comeback in winning the Wimbledon tennis championship for the seventh time, after a two-year absence from tennis competition, Helen Willis Moody is rated the outstanding individual performer in 1935 among women athletes by the fifth annual Associated Press sports poll.

Tabulation today of votes cast by sports editors and writers in all parts of the country showed Mrs. Moody in the lead over rivals in all sports in a year marked by many noteworthy feminine achievements.

The California matron, who first scaled national championship heights in senior competition in 1923, nearly doubled the point total of her nearest rival, Glenna Collett Vare, heroine of the year's outstanding golf comeback as she won the national title for the sixth time.

Helen Wins "Eased Up." Mrs. Moody polled 136 points to 76 for Mrs. Vare. Points were totaled on a 3-2-1 basis as sports observers listed the three outstanding performers in the order of preference. Mrs. Moody headed 33 lists and Mrs. Vare 11.

In a close race for third place in the poll, Little Mary Hoeger of Miami Beach, who had not yet celebrated her twelfth birthday last July when she won the National Senior A. U. three-meter diving championship, emerged the winner, with 55 points.

She was followed closely by Helen Stephens of Fulton, Mo., new sensation in track sports and record-breaker in national sprint competition, with 52 points. Helen Hull Jacobs, winner of the American tennis title for the fourth year, with 51 points.

Sports observers cited evidence to show that 1935 marked a fresh change from feminine ranks to the theory of masculine superiority in sports. With no rivals among her own sex, Helene Mayer, the famous German girl and Olympic fencing champion, engaged leading men fencers on the Pacific Coast on even terms.

1933 CHAMPION READY TO MEET DISCOVERY IN $100,000 RACE

Maryland's Spring Race Season to Begin at Bowie

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Dec. 17.—The Maryland racing season will get underway next April 1. Dates for the spring and fall meetings have been set and are subject to approval of the State Racing Commission. Jervis Spencer Jr., commission chairman, said he felt the dates would be approved.

The Preakness Stakes at Pimlico, Maryland's most famous race, is scheduled to be run Saturday, May 16. That is two weeks after the Kentucky Derby.

Dates for the tracks are: Bowie-Spring, April 1 to April 11; fall, Nov. 12 to Nov. 18 to Sept. 30.
Pimlico-Spring, April 29 to May 16; fall, Nov. 2 to Nov. 11.
Laurel-Fall only, Oct. 3 to Oct. 31.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Cavalcade, reigning three-year-old of 1935, will embark on a comeback campaign this week when he leaves his winter quarters at Columbia, S. C., for California with the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap as his chief objective.

The English-bred colt from Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Brookmeade Stable has fully recovered from the ailments that beset him since he was forced into retirement in mid-season two years ago after winning six of his seven starts and $11,235. His only defeat was by a stablemate, High Quest, in the Preakness.

Working Four Miles a Day.
The latest injury occurred at the start of the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park's spring meeting, when he threw his jockey. In his first race of the season, he had finished second to Head Play in an overnight event.

"Cavalcade is coming along very nicely," Howard Holmes, agent for the stables, told the Associated Press. "He is working out four miles a day and galloping soundly. Physically he is perfect."

The Brookmeade agent went west for the Santa Anita race last year and was made a favorite over such former greats as Eclipse, Twenty Grand, Mate and Head Play. Five days before the classic, he turned up with a hoof injury and was withdrawn.

If Cavalcade stands training he again will hook up with Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery, the speedy chestnut which took so much of the Brookmeade colt's dust as a three-year-old. Discovery, holder of two world records, will be a favorite to turn the tables on the Brookmeade star.

Big Brookmeade String.
Mrs. Sloan also has named her best three-year-old of the year, Psychic Bid, for the rich handicap. Accompanying the two stars to the West Coast will be Black Gift, Special Agent, Neap and Indian Broom, the last two being two-year-olds.

Football Stars Are Honored at Billiken Dinner

Members of the varsity and freshman football squads at St. Louis University last night were honored at a banquet given by the university at the Elks' Club.

It was just a get-together for the players, the alumni, the athletic officials and members of the university faculty and no business of any nature was transacted. Father Knapp represented the faculty and was among the speakers. Others were Earl Painter, Willis Johnson, Director of Athletics, Muel Jellie and his assistant, Carl Pike.

FORMER EAGLE ONE OF LEADING HOCKEY SCORERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The eyes of the National Hockey League were focused today on the Detroit Red Wings. Detroit has won five and tied one in its last six games, having beaten the Rangers Sunday to climb into undisputed lead in the American division. The Wings have lost but two games all season, three less than any other team in the division. Five games ended in tie.

The Wings take on the Boston Bruins tonight on the latter's home ice. It should be a torrid contest, for the Bruins, although in last place in the American division, have put up stubborn resistance. They have lost only one game by more than a point. In their last three games the Boston boys have shut out the Maroons 2-0, tied the Canadiens on foreign ice 1-1 and then defeated the flying Frenchmen on the home surface, 2-1, Sunday.

Because the Wings played Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, because it is a long journey from Detroit to Boston, and because the Bruins are playing on the home ice, the chances are that the fast traveling Detroiters will be temporarily halted.

Should Detroit be defeated, the Rangers have a chance to draw up into a tie for the lead in the American division again, in their meeting with the struggling Canadiens. They face a comparatively weak foe in the Canadiens, in last place in the international division with only three victories and two ties against seven defeats.

The Toronto Maple Leafs and the Montreal Maroons meet on the latter's ice tonight. A victory for the Maroons would bring them up from third place to a tie for first with the Maple Leafs in the international division. Toronto leads the division with 13 points, the New York Americans have 12 and the Maroons 11.

The Rangers will be playing their 500th game. In the lineup will be Murray Murdoch, who has participated in all those encounters. Others who were in the Rangers' opening game in 1926 and who will be on the ice again tonight are Ching Johnson, Bill and Bun Cook and Frank Boucher.

Two Ranger players, one a youngster and the other an old-timer, featured the National League scoring last week.
Clayton Kopp, last season with the St. Louis Eagles, filling in at right wing for Bill Cook, who is ill with tonsillitis, scored seven points, four of them in one game against the Montreal Maroons, for the best game of any player for the week. Frank Boucher, who has been around for a long time, was right on Brydson's heels with six.

His spurt brought them close to the top which remained in the possession of Paul Thompson, Chicago Blackhawk wingman whose eight goals, six assists, 14 points, was a point better than his showing a week ago.

Second in the league and top of the Canadian division was big Charlie Conacher of the Toronto Maple Leafs who, although failing to score a point in the Leafs' two losing games of the week, still retained his position with six goals, six assists.

Red Horner of Toronto had little competition for the "bad man" leadership. His 50 minutes in the penalty box was well ahead of the 22 totals of Allan Shields of the Maroons. Marty Burke had 27.

The leading scorers:

DICK TINDALL RANKS FIRST IN JUNIOR TENNIS

By Davison Obar.

Richard Tindall, St. Louis University player, was awarded first place in the 1935 junior singles ranking of the St. Louis District Tennis Association, according to the official list announced today by Monroe C. Lewis, chairman of the ranking committee. The committee ranked 10 players in singles and four doubles teams.

In making up this year's junior ranking the committee departed from the usual custom of considering the records of both the district and the St. Louis municipal junior events. Only the district tournament results were used in preparing the list announced today.

Tindall gained the No. 1 position in the junior singles by winning the district event at University City last June. Later in the season Tindall also won the St. Louis municipal junior honors.

Second place in the singles was given to Meyer Pankewer, who was finalist to Tindall, in the district championship. Pankewer had previously eliminated Herbert Markwort, placed No. 3 in the semifinals.

Joe Blath and Nathan David, Forest Park Tennis Club players, were placed No. 1 in the junior doubles as the result of their winning the district doubles title at University City. Following their district victory, the pair won the St. Louis municipal junior doubles honors.

The ranking follows:
JUNIOR SINGLES.
First Ten.

1—Richard Tindall.
2—Meyer Pankewer.
3—Herbert Markwort.
4—Alphonse Eberle Jr.
5—David P. Ferris.
6—McLeod Stephens.
7—William Heyward.
8—Charles Eberle.
9—Eugene Pettus.
10—Louis Reps.
JUNIOR DOUBLES.
1—Joe Blath and Nathan David.
2—McLeod Stephens and Thomas Rutledge.
3—Richard Tindall and Sam Evans.
4—Alphonse Eberle Jr. and Charles Eberle.

McKinley and Central to Play Strong Quintets

Two "extra-special" high school basketball games are scheduled to night, with McKinley, champion of the Public High School League, playing at St. Louis University High and Central, another strong city five, playing at Maplewood, both games starting at 8:15 o'clock.

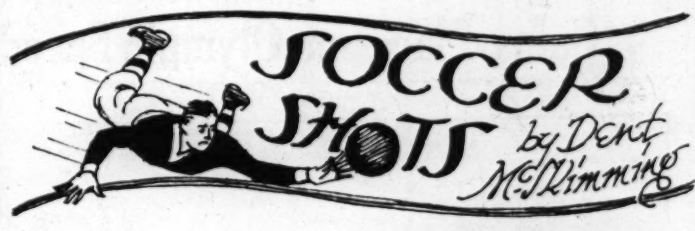

McKinley has not been tested this season, but will be sure to face a strong five this evening. The Junior Billikens began their season by defeating Normandy, 22-17, coming from behind in the last quarter to score their victory.

Maplewood, blessed with an abundance of veterans that caused two lettermen to sit on the bench during the game as seven have returned for this year's team, will meet a factor in the City League.

The Maple Leafs opened their season by outclassing Christian Brothers High, 32-14. Norman Pickle, guard, led the attack with 14 points.

In addition to the two features, there are five other games scheduled today or tonight. This afternoon, Kirkwood plays Principia at Howard Gymnasium, and Chaminda goes to Ritters, both games starting at 8:30 o'clock.

Tonight, McBride meets its fifth city league rival at Blewett's gymnasium, Christian Brothers High goes to Grante City, and Central Catholic High plays at the Ranken Trade Schools gymnasium.

Soccer history was written in London last Saturday, when Edward Drake, center forward of the Arsenal club, scored seven goals as his club defeated Aston Villa in a league match, 7-1. Only once before in the history of British football had a player scored more than seven in one game. That was in 1928, when J. McGrory of Glasgow Celtic put the ball in the opponents' net eight times.

The overwhelming defeat of Aston Villa was doubly shocking since the team included five stars for whom the club recently paid more than $125,000 in transfer fees. The estimated worth of the 22 players involved in the game, if placed on the auction block, was $555,000. Sixty thousand fans watched the game.

Upon his return to Pittsburgh after the visit to St. Louis, Walter McCabe, manager of the Heidelberg club, was asked to explain his team's surprising 4-2 victory over the national champions. His reply, as quoted in the Pittsburgh Press: "Phil Riley, business manager of the Shamrocks, came into our dressing room before the game and warned us that the St. Louis team was likely to run up a big score. He asked me to talk to my boys and encourage them even though they were being snowed under. That made our lads so mad they went out there and scored four goals before the Shamrocks counted one."

Jimmy Wilson, manager of the Philadelphia National League ball club, and his coach, Dick Spalding, were interested spectators at last Saturday's game between the Philadelphia German-Americans and the Hosiery Local club. Both Wilson and Spalding are former soccer players.

Only once, but they lost possession of the ball on the 10-yard line when their passing attack failed. The third touchdown was the result of a steady drive up the field.

Seaback got away in front with a run of 27 in the first inning, put together a cluster of 26 in the sixth and two more high runs of 34 and 33 on his fourteenth and fifteenth appearances at the table. HOPKINS SUGGESTS CITIZENS INSPECT LOCAL WPA ACTIVITY

Administrator Says Picture Is Different From What Long-Range Critics Present.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Harry L. Hopkins, director of the Works Progress Administration, in a statement yesterday said: 72.6 per cent of the $1,070,152,031 allotted to WPA was being spent on roads and streets, public buildings, water supply and sewer systems, parks and playgrounds, and then added: "The facts about this WPA program of work for the people who would otherwise be broke and out of a job are so different from what the self-appointed, long-range critics would have people believe that I hope every person who would form an opinion about these projects will go out and see what is being done in his community."

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Public Works Administrator, called together employees of the housing division to congratulate them on getting virtually all of the present $130,000,000 slum clearance program under way. Recalling difficulties that have beset this branch of PWA, he said he hoped the 47 projects would make the country "realize the seriousness of this particular problem of providing decent living conditions."

Ickes also expressed the hope that housing would be made a permanent part of the Interior Department.

DR. TOWNSEND TO FILE THIRD PARTY PETITIONS

Announces Intention to Assure Nation-wide Vote in His $200-a-Month Scheme in 1936.

NOT DECIDED ON PRESIDENCY

Whether Candidate Will Be Put Up Will Be Decided by Developments, His Statement Says.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Dr. F. E. Townsend, leader of the movement to provide $200 a month pensions to persons of 60 years or more, announced yesterday his organization would file third party petitions in all states. He said the action was planned in order to insure a nation-wide vote on the Townsend plan in 1936.

A statement signed by Dr. Townsend and the national secretary, R. E. Clements, also set forth: "This does not necessarily mean that in all states it would be necessary to exercise the third party prerogative. It is our hope that the attitude of one or both of the old political parties shall change toward the Townsend plan and that their espousal of our cause will make it unnecessary to exercise the rights granted by filing as an independent or third party. Asked whether they would enter a presidential candidate, he said developments would determine such action 'although we will be in a position to do so.'"

The Townsend-Clements statement said: "Recent developments have convinced us that there is great danger of collusion among candidates of both old parties to confuse the voters in many localities by various arts, including contempt, ridicule and the conspiracy of silence. If our organization is to be safeguarded against this connivance, it is apparent that we should give our people the protection of being able to vote on a straight out-and-out Townsend plan issue. If this safeguard is to be made effective, we must act within the time limits specified for filing in various states. This our legal counselors have been instructed to do."

"Neither One Seeking Office." "Neither of us is seeking political office or power, but we would be violating the trust of our people if we sat by and allowed the time to pass to protect our movement and its millions of followers in their right to exercise their suffrage for a Congressman or Senator openly in favor of the Townsend plan. "We are giving the two old parties all the latitude possible and, if they do not see fit to respond to the will of the people, then we are determined to give our people an opportunity to express themselves at the ballot box. "We persuade as long as we can. We compel if we must."

Michigan Third District Voting on Townsend Supporter Today.

By the Associated Press.
BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Dec. 17.—The Townsend old age pension plan met its first mid-Western test as a political issue today in the election of a representative from Michigan's Third Congressional District.

Vernor W. Main, Republican candidate and supporter of the Townsend plan, was opposed by Howard W. Cavanaugh, Democrat, who has waged his campaign in opposition to Main's platform and repeatedly challenged Main to declare his affiliation to the regular Republican organization or to the Townsend organization.

Main, bearing the support of Townsend clubs in the district during the primary, decisively defeated his four opponents, who carried the approval of "regular" party groups.

Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald spoke in Main's behalf at a meeting here last night, and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg urged his election. Both made it clear, however, they supported Main as the Republican candidate, and did not endorse the Townsend plan.

Vandenberg said Main represented in general his own views on the Roosevelt policies, which he declared "jeopardize the American system and retard stable and permanent recovery."

EXPERIMENTAL ROCKET EXPLODES 100 FEET IN AIR

TRADE COMMISSION ALLEGES PRICE-FIXING ON BUTTER TUBS

Issues Complaint Against Six Companies and Trade Association.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Federal Trade Commission yesterday issued a complaint against six woodenware manufacturers and a trade association alleging violation of the Clayton Act by agreement to fix prices. The companies, according to the complaint, manufacture more than 90 per cent of the butter tubs sold in interstate commerce in the United States. They are: Menasha Woodenware Corporation, Menasha, Wis.; Creamery Package Manufacturing Co., Chicago; Elgin Butter Tub Co., Elgin, Ill.; Wisconsin Butter Tub Co., Marshfield, Wis.; Bousfield Woodenware Co., Minneapolis; and Storey City Butter Tub Co., Storey City, Ia. Also named were the Butter Tub Manufacturers' Association Council of Cleveland, and D. S. Hunter, Commissioner of the Council. All were given until Jan. 17 to show why a cease and desist order should not be issued by the commission. The complaint said the companies and the council conspired to restrict and suppress competition in the sale of tubs to jobbers and creameries by agreeing to fix uniform prices, terms and discounts, and by co-operating in enforcement by exchange of information through the association.

CONVENTION CHECK AGAINST STAMPEDE

Meeting Will Open June 9—Rule Adopted Giving Extra Delegates to Six States Carried in 1932.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Republican National Committee, in selecting Cleveland for the 1936 national convention, took pains yesterday to make any stampeding of the convention by a farmers' demonstration as difficult as possible. The convention will open June 9.

With only three cities asking for the convention, and willing to pay its expenses up to $150,000—Cleveland, Chicago and Kansas City—the committee chose Cleveland as the city where there would be the least danger of a farm demonstration and where, if there should be one, it would be smaller than in either of the other cities. Farmers from much of the Middle West, Minnesota, Iowa, the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas, would find Chicago within reasonably easy distance, while Kansas City would be as readily accessible. So the convention went to Cleveland, which might be reached by cotton farmers of the South, but the members of the committee evidenced no fear of an invasion of the convention by destitute share-croppers.

Leaders' Public Explanation. Semi-officially party leaders offered the explanation that Kansas City was rejected because it was too near the home of Gov. Landon of Kansas, a probable candidate, and that Chicago likewise failed to receive favorable consideration because it was the home of Frank Knox, also a probable candidate, and the committee did not wish to appear to be favoring either.

But there was no secret in the private conversations among the delegates as to the real reason the committee shied away from the cities on the border of the Middle West, where farmers' organizations are active. They recalled that there was a farmers' march on the 1928 convention in Kansas City when Herbert Hoover was nominated, and they also recalled the demands made by delegates from the farm states on the "grass roots" convention in Springfield, Ill., last June.

In the practical politics of managing a national convention the party leaders were certain that they did not want any turbulent demonstrations which might sweep the delegates off their feet. In Cleveland, they believe, they can go to work in the regular, orderly Republican-convention way and nominate a candidate and write a platform without undue interference.

Dispute Over Procedure. However, in the committee meeting there was lack of unanimity among the older, regular Republicans in working out the procedure. Former Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and former Postmaster-General Walter H. Brown being on opposite sides in a controversy over a question of secretly playing for supposed advantage over the Democrats in picking the date for the convention, and over the appointment of delegates.

Reed wanted an executive session of the committee to take up both questions. He opposed the fixing of any particular date for the convention, advocating the Executive Committee of the National Committee. The evident purpose was to defer the convention until after the Democrats had met and had adopted their platform, thus giving the Republicans the advantage of knowing before writing their platform just how the Democrats had handled the situation in an attempt to meet the Townsend plan and other matters.

He met instant opposition from John Hamilton, member from Kansas and general counsel for the committee, who said Republicans would be making "a colossal mistake" to start out the most important campaign in the history of the party behind closed doors.

Hamilton, Brown and Charles D. Riles of New York took issue with Reed on secrecy in the discussion of the appointment rule, and on the method of making the appointment.

There are No Safer Brakes Made than the Super-Safety Brakes on the 1936 Ford V-8

No other car in America has the same basic design as the Ford V-8. And because of its unique design — the Ford car could use any type of braking system now in common use.

BUT, with the whole field to choose from, Ford stands by mechanically operated Super-Safety brakes as safest for the Ford V-8.

This is the type braking system on many of America's costliest cars and most racing cars. And with its unique chassis design, Ford can use this system to better effect than any other automobile built today.

Then, Ford has more effective braking surface (186 square inches) than is found in any other low-priced car. And big 12" alloy-iron drums with special cooling fins to give you maximum braking power under all road conditions.

All in all, no safer brakes are made than you get in the 1936 Ford V-8.

And right through this Ford V-8 is the same sound engineering for safety and comfort. Ford uses a one-piece, welded-steel body because it is safer and quieter. Ford gives you Safety Glass in every window at no extra cost because Ford believes it is the manufacturer's duty to provide for maximum safety as part of the car's sales price.

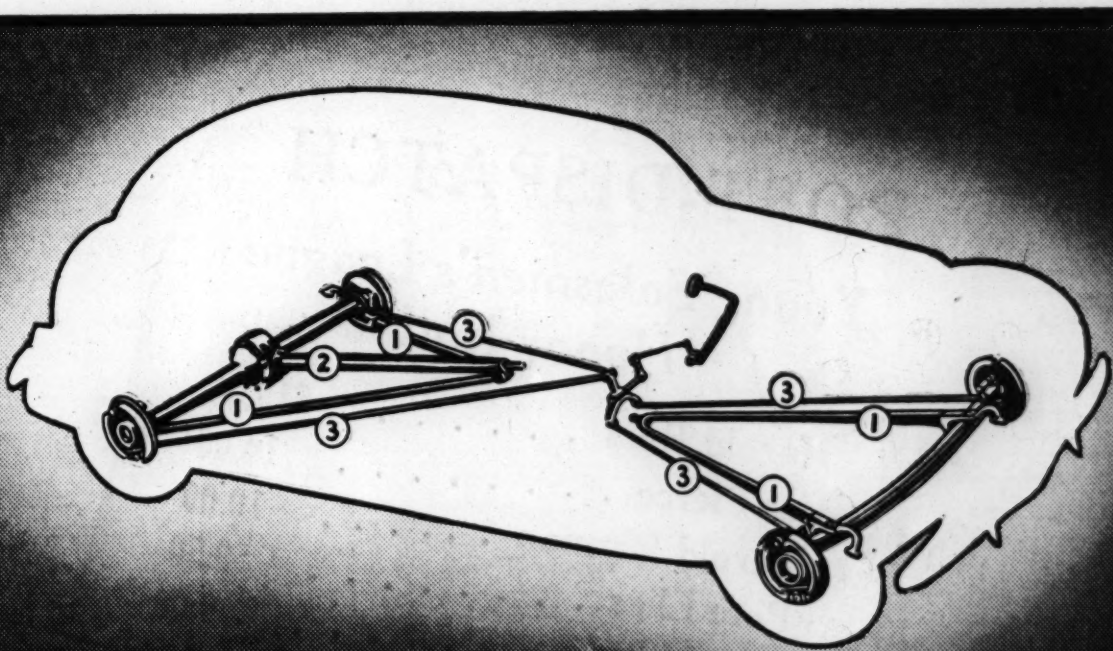

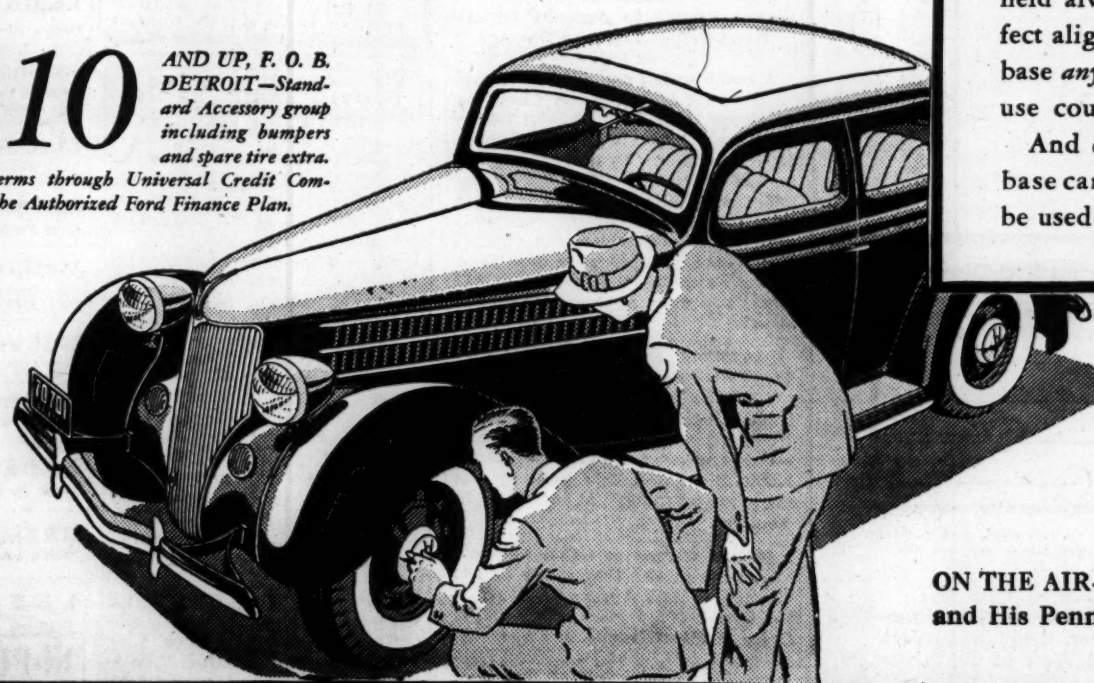

Drive the Ford V-8. See how it "holds the road" on curves—how dependably the brakes work on rough roads, steep hills, or anywhere else. Get in touch with—

FORD PERMANENT WHEELBASE

Radius rods [1] brace the front axle—like a pair of giant arms... Radius rods and Torque-tube [2] give triple bracing to the rear axle. This construction means that the front and rear axles of a Ford car are held always equi-distant—always in perfect alignment. On this permanent wheelbase any braking system now in common use could be used.

And only with this Ford-type wheelbase can mechanical, Super-Safety brakes be used to the fullest advantage.

FOUR INDEPENDENT BRAKE RODS

Note the four brake rods [3] of strong, tempered steel. These rods link the pressure of your foot on the pedal with the four big brake-drums on the wheels. They do this job positively, surely, under all road conditions. Note especially that no one Ford brake has to depend on the other three. Failure of one (practically impossible) would leave you three perfectly operating brakes.

Tear out this chart and check it with the car you are driving now.

CONVENTION CHECK AGAINST STAMPEDE

Meeting Will Open June 9 —Rule Adopted Giving Extra Delegates to Six States Carried in 1932.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Republican National Committee, in selecting Cleveland for the 1936 national convention, took pains yesterday to make any stampeding of the convention by a farmers' demonstration as difficult as possible.

The convention will be a long way from the real Middle West agricultural section. The convention will open June 9.

With only three cities asking for the convention, and willing to pay its expenses up to $150,000—Cleveland, Chicago and Kansas City—the committee chose Cleveland as the city where there would be the least danger of a farm demonstration and where, if there should be one, it would be smaller than in any other of the other cities.

Farmers from much of the Middle West, Minnesota, Iowa, the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas, would find Chicago within reasonably easy distance, while Kansas City would be as readily accessible. So the convention went to Cleveland, which might be reached by cotton farmers of the South, but the members of the committee evidenced no fear of an invasion of the convention by destitute share-croppers.

Leaders' Public Explanation.
Semi-officially party leaders offered the explanation that Kansas City was rejected because it was too near the home of Gov. Landon of Kansas, a probable candidate, and that Chicago likewise failed to receive favorable consideration because it was the home of Frank Knox, also a probable candidate, and the committee did not wish to appear to be favoring either.

But there was no secret in the private conversations among the delegates as to the real reason the committee shied away from the cities on the border of the Middle West, where farmers' organizations are active.

They recalled that there was a farmers' march on the 1932 convention in Kansas City when Herbert Hoover was nominated, and they also recalled the demands made by delegates from the farm states on the "grass roots" convention in Springfield, Ill., last June.

In the practical politics of managing a national convention the party leaders were certain that they did not want any turbulent demonstrations which might sweep the delegates off their feet.

In Cleveland, they believe, they can go to work in the regular, orderly Republican-convention way and nominate a candidate and write a platform without undue interference.

Dispute Over Procedure.
However, in the committee meeting there was lack of unanimity among the older, regular Republicans in working out the procedure.
Former Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and former Postmaster-General Walter H. Brown being on opposite sides in a controversy over a question of secretly playing for supposed advantage over the Democrats in picking the date for the convention, and over the apportionment of delegates.

Reed wanted an executive session of the committee to take up both questions. He opposed the fixing of any particular date for the convention, advocating a delegation of power to the Executive Committee of the National Committee.
The evident purpose was to defer the convention until after the Democrats had met and had adopted their platform, thus giving the Republicans the advantage of knowing how the Democrats had handled the situation in an attempt to meet the Townsend plan and other matters.

He met instant opposition from John Hamilton, member from Kansas and general counsel for the committee, who said Republicans would be making "a colossal mistake" to start out the most important campaign in the history of the party behind closed doors.

'Valuta Aristocrats' Lose Advantages in Russia

New Order Fixing Rate of Exchange for Foreign Money Increases Their Cost of Living About 400 Pct.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Dec. 17.—Next to go, in the process of ironing out class levels here, are the so-called "valuta aristocrats," persons who have had the privilege of spending foreign money and acquiring goods not to be obtained in ordinary ruble shops.

The Kremlin recently ordered foreign currency shops closed. Henceforth the only medium of exchange will be Soviet money. To foreigners and the small percentage of Soviet citizens who have valuta or foreign currency incomes the order was a blow. It threatens not only to wipe out their privilege, but to reduce them to serious financial straits.

The "valuta aristocrat" will now have to take his dollars, or francs or pounds, to the State Bank and exchange them for rubles at a rate of proportion with present price levels.

Each dollar will bring five rubles. Bread costs two and a half rubles a loaf, butter 10 rubles a pound, a suit of clothes 1000 rubles, gasoline 4 rubles a gallon.

Thus the valuta aristocrat, heretofore considered fortunate, goes down to the other end of the scale.
Some embassies and legations are planning to cut down their staffs, as it is estimated costs of operation as well as living will be increased about 400 per cent by the new order. The newspaper colony is likewise expected to dwindle.

Prices in the valuta or Torgsin shops were adjusted to foreign currency rates. Their ratio was about one to 25, compared with prices in the ruble stores—that is, an article costing a dollar in the Torgsin stores was priced at 25 rubles in the ruble shops.

Food products in the ruble shops have been of a better grade than in the Torgsin stores for several months. But imported cloth, drugs, stationery, shoes and numerous other choice items could be obtained only in the Torgsins.

An income of $100 a month, which formerly represented in the Torgsin stores the equivalent of 2500 rubles in purchasing power, will now be worth only 500 rubles.

Since the Government controls both the rate of wages paid to the working population and the prices charged for commodities the relation between them is officially regulated.

ILLINOIS FIRM ATTACKS VALIDITY OF GUFFEY ACT

Gets Temporary Injunction in East St. Louis to Bar
Collection of Tax.

A temporary injunction forbidding the Internal Revenue Department to collect from the Delta Coal Mining Co. of Marion, Ill., taxes imposed under the Bituminous Coal Conservation Act, known as the Guffey Act, was issued today by Federal Judge Wham at East St.
Louis.

Assistant District Attorney Gendrel Bennett contended the court was without authority to issue a temporary injunction. Attorneys for the company replied that penalties amounting to $7000 a month were being assessed since 1932 because of the company's unwillingness to accept the coal code provided in the act.

In attacking the constitutionality of the act, the company cited the provision under which 15 per cent of the sale price of coal at the mine was collected as a tax, refund of 90 per cent being made only to companies which accepted the code. Although called a tax, it was contended it was, in reality, a penalty on non-members, intended to coerce them into accepting the code. The date for a hearing on the petition for a permanent injunction was not set.

LEGION PRESENTS DEMAND FOR BONUS TO ROOSEVELT

Pensions for Widows and Children of World War Veterans Also Requested.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The American Legion demand for cash payment of the bonus was laid before President Roosevelt today at the White House by Ray Murphy, National Commander.

He put before the President the legislative program adopted by the Legion. It included, in addition to the bonus, pensions for widows and dependent children of World War veterans, the universal service bill for war time and adequate national defense. Murphy was accompanied to the White House by John Thomas Taylor, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Legion.

Murphy said he had "reason to believe" the Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars would be united on a bonus bill at the coming session of Congress.

FEDERAL MILK INQUIRY DATE FOR ST. LOUIS NOT YET SET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The Federal Trade Commission will start an investigation of the milk industry in New York about Jan. 1 to be followed by investigations in the St. Louis and Boston milk markets. The Economic Division also will make a study of milk distribution costs.

The investigation was ordered in a resolution adopted by the Seventy-third Congress. Reports already have been made to Congress on the Connecticut and Philadelphia milksheds, and the Minneapolis-St.
Paul and Chicago reports are expected to be submitted early next session.

While Jan. 1 is the tentative date for starting the New York investigation, dates have not been set for the St. Louis and Boston inquiries.

MEXICAN SENATE FIRES 4 GOVERNORS IN CALLES FACTION

Meets in Special Session to Oust Followers of President Cardenas' Political Opponent.

MEN ARE ACCUSED OF AIDING IN PLOT

Former President Says Friends Are Forming Party but Denies He Returned to Lead Revolt.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., Dec. 17.—The Senate, meeting in special session last night, ousted the governors of four states who were known to be sympathetic toward former President Plutarco Elias Calles.

The four were Dr. Manuel Paez of Sinaloa, Ramon Ramos of Sonora, Carlos Real of Durango and Manuel Yanez Maya of Guanajuato.
They were accused of seditious activities and violations of the Constitution.

A few hours before the Senate acted, Gen. Calles, political opponent of President Lazaro Cardenas, said he would not leave the country again. He returned Friday from Los Angeles. Calles had left Mexico about six months ago after a sharp break with Cardenas.
He accused the new President of leading the country too far to the left.

After removing the governors, the Senate named Col. Hernandez Javier Leyva as Governor of Sinaloa, Jesus Gutierrez, of Sonora, Gen.
Cecilio Ceniceros of Durango and Enrique Fernandez Martinez of Guanajuato.

It was reported the Federal garrisons in the capitals of the four states had been reinforced and that the former Governors were being watched closely.

For Ousting Calles as General.
The Senate named a commission to request the War Department to dismiss Gen. Calles and Gen. Jose Maria Tapia from their posts in the army. Some speakers accused Tapia of attempting to line up State governors behind Calles in a movement against the Government.

Calles issued a statement today, expressing "amazement" at ousters
"for the crime of being considered friends of mine." He opposed the present agitation was unfounded and was a result of illegal action by the Senate.

He disclosed that his friends were forming a political party.
"This action," he said, "neither constitutes a crime nor a subversive act. It is necessary for the nation to know that Gen. Calles is not a conspirator and has not returned to lead a revolt."

Political Prisoners Granted Amnesty by King of Greece

ONE of the first official acts of the recently restored George II was the release of political prisoners. STYLANOS GONATAS, ex-president of the Senate, and two former ministers named

turned to provoke agitations of any kind."
He appealed to his former comrades in the army, including President Cardenas, to testify that Calles "never urged them to abandon their duty."

Gen. Heriberto Jara Corona has been transferred to the command of the Vera Cruz military zone succeeding Gen. Pedro Almada, who has been brought back to Mexico City.

A lessening of the tension brought about by Calles' arrival was shown by the decision of the Chamber of Deputies not to expel 10 deputies for alleged conspiracy with the former President.

Five members have been expelled from the Senate on this ground.
Leaders of the Chamber of Deputies had announced they planned similar steps.

Luis Mora Tovar, head of the left-wing bloc in the Chamber of Deputies said:
"It has been decided not to act against friends of Calles because the Chamber agrees with President Cardenas that there is no reason why Calles should not reside in Mexico and attaches no importance to his return."

"The Chamber, as always, is most determined to support Cardenas but sees no motive in acting at the present."

More School Bombings.
Two more school bombings were reported last night. Guards were ordered thrown around all school buildings in the capital after the explosions, which caused heavy property damage but no injuries.

Three bombings during the day were attributed to opponents of socialistic education, apparently taking advantage of the situation created by the return to Mexico of Calles.

The two bombings were said by witnesses to have been perpetrated by five men who threw the bombs from a sedan. The other three bombings were attributed to a
"group of men" in an automobile.

About 200 demonstrators shouting "death to Calles" attempted to approach his house last night, but were turned back by police.

Gen. Antonio I. Villarreal, once a close friend of Calles, was reported to have been seen at the scene of the bombings.

TIENTSIN, Dec. 17.—A bomb exploded today in a vacant house adjacent to the official residence of Major-General Harao Tada, commander of the Japanese North China garrison, killing one person.
The explosion occurred in the home of Liu Kwei-tang, a bandit leader with Japanese sympathies.

King Orders Election in Greece

ATHENS, Dec. 17.—King George of Greece signed a decree today dissolving the Assembly and ordering a general election for Jan. 26. Advisers advocated the action considering that the Assembly, called after the revolution last March was not representative.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always oppose the demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Credit to Representative Cochran.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

While inspecting the beautiful new $4,000,000 Federal Building which adorns Twelfth and Market boulevards, I heard a woman remark to a companion, "This is one of Jack Cochran's projects."

This remark reminded me that very soon another one of Congressman Cochran's projects in the form of a magnificent new postoffice building will rear its head at Eighteenth and Market streets.

In addition to all of this, a recent dispatch from Washington advised us that Representative Cochran, who has just recovered from a long illness due to overwork, has succeeded in obtaining an appropriation of $1,080,000 for the rehabilitation or rebuilding of the old Marine Hospital at the foot of Arsenal street.

These structures, made possible by the untiring and unceasing efforts of this remarkable man to procure funds for their construction, should serve as lasting monuments to his unflinching devotion to the interests and welfare of his native city, as well as memorials to his scrupulous fidelity to the public trust reposed in him.

This modest Congressman of Congressmen achieves great benefits for our city without fanfare, ostentation or the aid of expensive delegations from St. Louis to Washington.

President Roosevelt, in paying a tribute to Senator Norris of Nebraska at a recent press conference, said that the Senator should not be allowed to retire from the Senate whether he wanted to or not for the very good reason that he is necessary in the Senate not only to the people of Nebraska, but to those of the United States as long as he lives.

The same is also true of Jack Cochran. He should be re-elected to Congress because St. Louis, Missouri and the nation need him there.

M. J. Mc.

Favors Trade Treaty With Finland.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I BELIEVE in high tariffs, and an out-and-out enemy of all farm products that can be raised in America. However, I would like to see a trade treaty effected with honest little Finland, allowing it to ship its products in duty-free.

One honest nation in a world of dead-beats deserves a break.

Parma, Mo. E. V. BLACKMAN.

Asks About Bridge Toll.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I N my frequent crossings of the Municipal Free Bridge, the irony of the designation "free" is brought forward humorously and forcibly.

I know that the revenue derived thus is allocated for relief purposes, but I do not recollect ever having seen a report of the amount collected since the establishment of this bridge toll, or, for that matter, a report of the amount disbursed or the method of distribution.

Who has charge of the fund and its distribution? In fairness to the taxpayer, public of St. Louis, some accounting of this money should be made. Perhaps all the data incident to the subject is available to the inquiring, but pray tell us where and how.

NAYLOR GROSSIN.

Government Enterprises.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

HAMILTON FISH is going about saying that the Government must never engage in any business enterprise which would compete with private industry.

How about the public spending? The United States was held back for many years from adopting it by the opposition of the private enterprise companies; yet it has proved a blessing.

L. M. J.

"Where the Money Goes."
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THERE is food for thought in your reprint from the Baltimore Sun, "Where the Money Goes," Dec. 12.

The article first mentions that which we all know, that public spending stimulates business activity, as the money passes from the needy upward until it finally helps to swell the bank deposits of the money lenders.

The article tells us that the reason this money does not circulate further, does not go to make employment, production and business, is because business men lack confidence and are convinced the boom is but artificial and will end as soon as public spending stops.

But if the money lenders see that spending (providing purchasing power) makes business good, why do they not reduce hours to make more employment, more buying power? Why do they not they pour the profit invest their money in employment at fair wages and goods at fair prices, thus making business activity real and natural instead of artificial?

By doing this, they would relieve the Government of the necessity of pouring money into a rat hole. They would restore their own confidence by lifting a load of guilt off their consciences. They destroyed the foundation of all business and prosperity when they grabbed the benefits of the machine to themselves and turned employees into the streets.

DEMOCRACY.

THE LAST DAYS OF CALLES?

Is the career of Calles to end in the eclipse of a futile rebellion? The news from Mexico raises that question. President Cardenas, apparently, has the situation well in hand. He has acted, the dispatches imply, swiftly and effectively. He has scotched the conspiracy, if the movement may be so designated, by removing suspects in high civil and military places. The army is loyal. So is labor. So are other important groups. Friends of other days have deserted the old warrior, the "man of iron." Thus the dispatches. Are they accurate? Are they reporting the facts? Are they the propaganda of censorship? Such doubts dangle in the air.

Interest centers on Plutarco Elias Calles. He has been the man of the hour, almost continuously, in the long, troubled and triumphant years since the visionary Madero's challenge to the autocracy of Diaz. Soldier and statesman, he has been, as nearly as the circumstances permitted, the Washington of Mexico. Certainly he embodied the Washington renunciation of power, the ideal of unselfish patriotism, in a moment of temptation when a less scrupulous ruler would have yielded.

Calles' message to the Mexican Congress, Sept. 1, 1928, was a truly historic state paper. President-elect Obregon's assassination had paralyzed the country's public opinion. It had palsied the judgment of the country's leadership. Peon and patrician, turning to Calles, had entreated him to continue in office until the chaos could be resolved and a rational political choice effected. How splendidly he trusted aside the crown must remain a memorable disavowal and an imperishable legacy to Mexico. He said:

I first deem it necessary to make a final, unalterable declaration, on my word of honor to Congress, to the country and to the family of civilized nations. Perhaps never have circumstances placed the head of a nation in a more propitious atmosphere to return to the principle of perpetuation in office of one man. Suggestions and promises have been made to me, even certain pressure exerted, all under the guise that it would be for the best interests of the country for me to continue in office. But I have decided solemnly, with such clearness of words that it cannot be misinterpreted, that I shall not seek prolongation of my term, either by accepting a prolongation of my present term of office or by appointment as a provisional President. Aside from other considerations, I do this because of the need I consider categorical and final to pass from the system of government by caudillos (military chieftains) to a clean one of government by institutions. Never, for any reason, under any circumstances, shall I return to the presidency.

It would be possible, of course, for Calles to participate in, or even lead, a successful uprising against Cardenas without violating that pledge. But that was a technical interpretation. The spirit of the compact would be broken, and only at a price, presumably, of bloody civil war. And whatever the name of the rider, the man on horseback would again be galloping back across the struggling hopes of Mexico. A contagion of dictatorship, of the indispensable man, sweeps the world. Perhaps the infection has attacked the ill and aging hero of so many battles, counting the ebbing minutes a virtual prisoner.

LEN SMALL AGAIN.

The unbelievable has happened in Illinois. Len Small has indicated in a newspaper interview that he will seek the governorship again. According to the Chicago Daily News, the former Governor formally will declare his candidacy next month and then file for the Republican nomination to be decided in April.

There is no need to review Small's record at this time. It is enough to say that during his two terms as Governor, from 1920 to 1928, he discredited himself, his party and his State as have few other political spoliemen. As in 1932, when he secured the nomination because of a multiplicity of candidates in the primary, his candidacy transcends party politics. The possibility of his nomination is a concern of every voter in Illinois. It is to be hoped that his advisers will have the good judgment to persuade him not to run, but if he does run, the course is clear. The Republicans of Illinois, for their own good as well as for that of the State, will be duty-bound to concentrate their strength on a candidate who can stop the Small candidacy in its tracks.

COUP DE GRACE FOR AND/OR.

That bit of rhetorical legal abracadabra, and/or, has been getting some pretty heavy buffeting of late. Federal Judge Charles B. Davis was comparatively mild when he termed it "useless modern language." John W. Davis was more severe when he described it as "a bastard sired of Indolence (or Ignorance) out of Dubuety." Senator Carter Glass did not rely on words alone but went into action against the offender at the last session of Congress, when he had it expunged wherever it occurred in a resolution before a Senate committee. It remained for Justice Chester A. Fowler of the Wisconsin Supreme Court to abandon all restraint and bring the batteries of his eloquence into full play against the device. In his official and personal opinion, recently delivered, and/or is that befuddling nameless thing, that Janus-faced verbal monstrosity, neither word nor phrase, the child of a brain of someone too lazy or too dull to know what he did mean, now commonly used by lawyers in drafting legal documents, through carelessness or ignorance or as a cunning device to conceal rather than express a meaning with a view to furthering the interest of their clients.

After that onslaught, there remains nothing for poor, quivering, tortured and/or to do but surrender or die, or both. Except that legalistic diardhs would survive who would describe the situation as "surrender and/or die."

Chicago has its Col. Knox, Topeka its Gov. Landon and Cleveland the convention.

THE MICHIGAN STRADDLER.

The Third Michigan District is electing a member of Congress today. The Republican candidate, Verne W. Main, is a Townsend-planner. Senator Vandenberg, listed among the Republican party's presidential prospects, is for Main. He is not for the Townsend plan—not yet. It isn't feasible, and it isn't constitutional, in his opinion. But he waves it aside and supports its proponent, who, he says, "generally represents my views." Senator Vandenberg's views at this time are that the "major Roosevelt policies jeopardize the American system and retard stable and permanent recovery."

So Mr. Vandenberg, in 1935. Not so Mr. Vandenberg in 1934. As a candidate for re-election to the Senate a year ago, the Senator watched his step as he skirted the controversial issues. He compounded New Deal and Old Deal so skillfully that he was one of the few Republicans who lived to tell the tale. Now, with public sentiment running against the New Deal, Mr. Vandenberg is swimming with the current. He knows his politics. And if political exigencies should require him to grapple the Townsend plan to his bosom, could he do it? He has himself posed the question.

MR. HOOVER'S SPEECH.

The "new" Mr. Hoover, in his speech in St. Louis last night, attacked the administration at its most vulnerable point—the waste and inefficiency in the New Deal's efforts to relieve unemployment through made work. It was the best of Mr. Hoover's recent speeches, and it deserves serious attention.

In March, 1933, there was far greater warrant for the federalization of relief than Mr. Hoover is willing to admit. Many of the states and municipalities had come to the end of their rope. The incoming administration faced an emergency of the gravest sort. But this is not to say that there is justification for the sprawling bureaucratic structure that has resulted, or for the undoubted encroachment of the spoils system on the civil service. Mr. Hoover is on solid ground when he says that if relief was to be centralized, then "every call of good government demanded that the staff be selected through the Civil Service Commission."

One need not agree with all the strictures of the former President to agree with him that the time has come to stop wasteful works, to confine the public projects of the future to works that have some value to the nation. The country cannot continue indefinitely to spend money at the rate it is now spending it for made work. As we said lately in commenting on a speech by President Roosevelt, we cannot see that there is any great difference, in the effect on morale, between an outright grant for relief—the dole, if you will—and work that the beneficiary knows to be useless.

We agree with Mr. Hoover that the decentralization of relief, at the earliest practicable time, is greatly to be desired. There is much to be said for the plan recently urged by Walter Lippmann on this page. Federal assistance, as he points out, and as Mr. Hoover says, will continue to be needed, but the responsibility of administration needs to be returned in large measure to the states. Many of the states today—most of them—are leaning shamelessly on the Federal Government, and this condition will continue so long as present policies are in effect.

It is, of course, true, as the former President says, that "true relief must come from honest, productive jobs, not from public funds." It is equally true that if such jobs are to be created to anywhere near the number required, unnecessary Federal spending must stop.

Mr. Hoover has issued a pertinent and a proper challenge to the administration.

MR. FORD'S "PRIVATE SANCTIONS."

The Italian armies' slow progress in Ethiopia for some time has been displeasing to Mussolini, reports have said. He recently sent a new commander there to displace a veteran leader, with orders to speed up the campaign. It hasn't speeded up, but Gen. Graziani, commander on the Southern front, has an alibi at hand. It is Henry Ford.

If Henry Ford hadn't imposed his "private sanctions," the General says, the Italians would have had 800 caterpillar tractors, which had been ordered and paid for in advance. If they had had the tractors, they would have been able "to march straight to Addis Ababa." No tractors, no Roman conquest, no civilization for Ethiopia.

The alibi, if founded on fact, does great credit to Mr. Ford, from both the commercial and the humanitarian standpoint. His business acumen was hitting on all eight when he demanded cash down, in view of the condition of the Italian Treasury. And his humanitarianism was functioning well, too, when he prevented use of his tractors on an expedition of destruction and murder and conquest. Mr. Ford's views on war are well known. Can the Italians have forgotten the "peace ship" with which the motor manufacturer hoped to end the World War 20 years ago? That had no perceptible effect, but denial of war materials to a belligerent does have an effect, as demonstrated by Gen. Graziani's protest.

It is news of the finest kind when a manufacturer's principles come before his profits. The present furor over American neutrality and embargoes would speedily simmer down to teapots if more exporters were governed by such principles.

After a long conference on Shakespeare in Moscow last week, they decided the Bard of Avon was the poet of the proletariat and a comrade in good standing. All rights!

A FREE UNIVERSITY.

Universities over the country have been the scene of Red huns, investigations, suspensions, expulsions and restrictions on free speech in recent months. Both the faculties' freedom to teach and the students' freedom to discuss have been imperiled by the drive. State Legislatures have consumed much valuable time discussing and probing alleged subversive influences at various educational institutions. It has been unfortunate that the authorities of some schools have bent the knee to the individuals and organizations who instigate such charges. The exceptions, where the fundamental traditions still have full force, are worthy of note and of acclaim.

One such recent exception is the Board of Regents of the University of Wisconsin. The State Senate's Investigative Committee on Communistic and Other Subversive Activities had made the usual charges, recommending expulsion of various individuals and suspension of offending societies. The board condemned the report, and vigorously criticized it for "generalities, omissions and misstatements." The regents then went on record with an admirable statement, in part as follows:

We affirm our belief in the full freedom of expression of honest opinion on economic and political matters where such expression does not go beyond the bounds of law or good morals. We believe students should have and do have the right to study social problems and should not be suppressed from expressing or advocating doctrines in which they sincerely believe, provided always the bounds of law or of decency are not exceeded. This is the rule which has prevailed in the university and we here reaffirm it.

The statement points out the path away from both the repressions of Fascism and the excesses of Communism by reaffirming devotion to the American high road of academic freedom.

And now a nephew of Mussolini's is off for the front, leaving Benito the only stay-at-home of the family.

SANTA CLAUS WOULDN'T LET GOV. TALMADGE HAVE HIS BAG AND WHISKERS.

TODAY AND TOMORROW

By Walter Lippmann

Speaking Candidly

THERE have recently been conventions of farmers in Chicago and of manufacturers in New York. Among the farmers, the President found warm support; among the manufacturers, embittered and apparently irreconcilable opposition. Although he himself has declared that agriculture and industry form a "seamless web," that the one cannot prosper without the other, he cannot fail to realize that, in the opinion of those most directly affected, his farm program is popular and his industrial program unpopular.

Although there is a general recovery, somehow he has managed to win the farmers and to antagonize business men. It may be interesting to look at some of the causes of this contradictory result.

One of them, I feel sure, is to be found in the equipment of the men who have dealt with the two great branches of the American economy. The Department of Agriculture is an old established organization. In the course of three generations, it has recruited and trained a highly expert staff. No one can doubt that the department is manned by officials who really understand agriculture, that they are seasoned and on the whole extraordinarily competent career men. It is one of the departments at Washington which most nearly approaches the ideal which civil service reformers have aimed at.

It was these trained civil servants with their long experience and their intimate knowledge of farm problems who planned and have administered the adjustment program. One may dislike the program. But no one can seriously deny that it has been effectively executed, that it is a very remarkable feat of administration.

The contrast with the NRA, for example, has been devastating. There were able men in the NRA. But they were amateurs in government. There did not exist in the Department of Commerce or anywhere else in Washington any organization of trained men who understood industry as the Department of Agriculture staff understands farming.

As a result, the farm program represented the matured opinions of men who had devoted years to the agriculture problem. The industrial program, on the other hand, was hastily improvised sometime between April and June of 1933. It was administered by men who played, so to speak, by ear. They did not know what they were doing. They never did know, for example, whether they were in favor of price-fixing or against it, in favor of monopoly or against it, in favor of stimulating profits or not, in favor of higher costs or lower prices.

There has been no such basic confusion in the minds of Secretary Wallace and his lieutenants. They arrived in Washington in 1933 with a clear idea of what they meant to do; they had been clarifying their ideas in prolonged discussions for at least 10 years. The NRA, on the other hand, having no coherent convictions, was blown hither and thither by the pressure of lobbyists and whatever theories happened to be in the wind.

But while these considerations go far toward explaining why AAA has been so much more effective than NRA, they do not fully explain the opposing reactions of farmers and business men. For the ultimate explanation we have to look, I think, to the prejudices of the President and his advisers. In his speeches, the President does not admit that he has a prejudice; he may not even be aware that he has one. But the prejudice has been unmistakably manifest in actions, it has been keenly felt by the industrialists, and it is that prejudice, rather than any specific measure of the New Deal, which most fully explains the antagonism of business men.

The President's attitude toward the farmers has been one of complete sympathy; toward industry and finance, it has been one of distrust. Thus, for example, when he set out to regulate agricultural production, he devised a system to pay the farmer if he complied. But when he has tried to regulate industry and finance, he has resorted to coercive laws, to threats, to punishment, to "death sentences." There can be no doubt that there has been a profound difference of temper and of fundamental attitude. He has done everything he could to help the farmer. He has tried to compel and overawe the business man.

Surely this is the reason the farmers have co-operated with the New Deal, whereas business men have become more and more irreconcilably hostile. No one denies that there has been useful legislation dealing with business and finance. But in the case of agriculture, the temper of the laws and their administration has been friendly, and in the case of industry, the temper has been coercive, unfriendly and often hostile.

It is open to the defenders of the New Deal to say, if they like, that there were abuses in industry and finance, consolidated as vested interests, which would not have yielded to more sympathetic treatment. But those who say that are simply demonstrating their prejudices. But there are abuses in agriculture and in organized labor no less deeply entrenched; the administration has not felt it necessary to attack them all at once. It has, for example, done little if anything about the wretched labor conditions among many migratory farm workers or about the abuses to which some tenant farmers are subject.

The New Dealers very wisely concentrated their efforts on stimulating a general recovery in the principal branches of agriculture. But when they have dealt with industry, they have been so much concerned with abuses, so over-zealous about fixing this and that, here and there and everywhere, that they never have wholeheartedly devoted themselves to the main thing—which was to stimulate an industrial recovery.

For agriculture, the New Deal has centered its interest on the main body of decent farmers and has tried to help them. For industry and finance, it has centered its interest on the marginal chiselers, swindlers, financial racketeers, the unscrupulous speculators, and has staked everything on the effort to reform them. In the case of agriculture, the spirit has been that of a partner; in the case of industry, the spirit has been that of a stern mentor, often that of a persecutor, and in some instances that of a persecutor.

If the President will look candidly into his own mind, he will find there the explanation of his successes and his difficulties. To agriculture, he has given his sympathy and he has been repaid in sympathy; toward industry, he has been lacking in sympathy and he is being repaid in antagonism. It is a practical rule in human affairs that on Peace vs. Principles

From the New York Herald Tribune.

IT IS with distinctly mixed feelings that one reads the terms of the Franco-British inducement to Il Duce to abandon his little war in East Africa. There is something ironic in this picture of great nations, solemnly sworn to "preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence" of Ethiopia, thus offering to reward the aggressor by ratifying his title to large gobs of Ethiopian territory and the further drastic impairment of Ethiopian political independence.

To intervene in a highway robbery—and to intervene while the victim is still very much alive and battering the highwayman not unsuccessfully—with a proposal that the thief shall receive, in compensation for his efforts, free title to the victim's watch, watch chain and cuff links, plus the secured loan of one-third of the contents of his wallet, does not, somehow, seem to be quite the way to establish that reign of law with which the United States is being so earnestly summoned to co-operate.

It is not easy to believe that the world would be a much more secure place if the Germans, just after their check along the Marne in 1914, had been offered the possession of Belgium and Northern France, with complete administrative rights in addition over large tracts of French territory their armies had never reached, provided they called off the war.

Yet, on the other hand, there is the practical fact that the reported offer is about the first which Il Duce could well risk considering, while some sort of negotiated settlement with concessions all around seems about the only hope of a reasonably safe exit from the situation.

To preserve some measure of peace and stability, the League Powers are thus driven shamelessly to traduce all the vital principles upon which the League peace system has been founded. If the "collective system" is to survive, it would seem that its fundamental legal principles—concerning "aggression" and "security" and so on—would have to undergo some pretty drastic revision.

But possibly the dilemma can be postponed; for after all, there is still Ethiopia. The British, in particular, have said over and over that they will urge no settlement not acceptable to Haile Selassie. Possibly Sir Samuel Hoare knows more about Haile Selassie's intentions than the rest of us.

But if that monarch should elect to try to hang on to his watch and cuff links, then the League Powers, while provided with an excuse for not going ahead with the oil embargo, could presumably stand on existing sanctions for a time. They could wait, in other words, to see what contributions the Ethiopian riflemen and topographers may still have to make to international law and justice.

There are, of course, issues where in the end there must be a fight and a showdown. But most questions, particularly the questions this country has been concerned with in the last five years, are not fighting questions; they are matters on which honest men may disagree, and they have to be dealt with by compromise and consent. For such questions, the worst advisers are those who urge fighting for its own sake, who have confused their own views with the certain and absolute truth, the cock-sure, self-satisfied and suspicious men who are suffering from the awful delusion that not only are they right in their views, but that they alone are righteous in their hearts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. MOST of the New Dealers are not prone to spend their weekends in bibulous revelry. Nevertheless, that old pre-prohibition term, "Blue Monday," connotation of headaches and hangovers, has come to be a real state of mind with them.

Reason is the Supreme Court plus the fact that Monday is the day on which the Justices hand down their decisions.

In four decisions pulled out of the Supreme Court grab-bag last week, the New Deal drew a blank every time.

And it is beginning to get on New Deal nerves.

It looks bad for such major issues as the AAA, the Wagner Labor Disputes Act, the Guffey Coal Law and the Holding Corporation Act.

Technicalities.

TAKE the Hastings case, decided last week. This involved the Federal Warehousing Act, by which the Government stores cotton and other staple crops, issuing receipts to farmers on which they borrow money.

The act had been in effect for 19 years. To have thrown it out was unconstitutional would have thrown into chaos the entire economic structure of the South. The case was decided against the Government on a technical point.

The same was virtually true in the test of the Home Owners' Loan Act.

This is an extremely important law. Under it thousands of mortgages have been issued by the Government, thousands of homes have been saved.

The court confined itself to the narrow question of whether State-chartered building-and-loan associations could be required to take out Federal licenses, and declared against the Government.

In the two other decisions last week, the Court held that the law—the law that imposed liquor taxes—was unconstitutional.

The Court also held that the law was unconstitutional.

Christens Warship Named for Ancestor

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17. — A White House conference on how much will be asked for relief in the next fiscal year broke up yesterday without an announcement.
 High officials met with President Roosevelt for more than two hours. Participants included Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, Harold L. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator, Rexford G. Tugwell, Reconstruction Administrator, and Daniel W. Bell, Acting Budget Director. Secretary Morgenthau lunched with the President at his desk before the conference. When it broke up, he lingered a few minutes with Hopkins and Bell.

Governor of Louisiana Names the Span After Late Senator Long.
 By the Associated Press.
 NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17. — A $13,000,000 bridge across the Mississippi was dedicated yesterday as a "monument to the memory" of the late Senator Huey P. Long. His former followers booed Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, enemy of the Long organization, during the ceremony.

The bridge, two miles above New Orleans, was proclaimed the Huey P. Long Bridge by Gov. O. K. Allen. It links for the first time below Vicksburg, Miss., the East and West banks of the river.
 So lustily did the crowd hiss and boo the Mayor that the proceedings were halted for 10 minutes and when he finally delivered his address his words were lost to all except a few near the speakers' platform.

ILLINOIS WPA ALLOTMENT OF $8,000,000 CANCELED

Further Reduction of $12,000,000 a Possibility, Says Director Ralph H. Burke.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Cancellation of $8,000,000 allotted to the Works Progress Administration in Illinois was announced today by Ralph H. Burke, Deputy State Administrator. The cancellation order, Burke said, was received from Washington by J. M. Warfield, local representative of the Treasury accounts office.

Additional cancellations of $12,000,000 may come at any time, Burke indicated. Recently he said that though Illinois had been allocated more than $80,000,000, he had been notified that $20,000,000 of this amount might be withdrawn to keep the State within its original figure of $62,000,000. "Whether we will continue work after March will depend on the success of other agencies," Burke said. "Under presidential order WPA must terminate by June 30."

THOMAS MALONEY JR. DIES AFTER SHOOTING

Globe-Democrat Bldg. Supervisor Wounded in Fight With Watchman He Fired.

Thomas O. Maloney Jr., supervisor of the Globe-Democrat Building, died at City Hospital at 6:30 o'clock last night from bullet wounds suffered early Sunday when he exchanged shots with Vincent Dolan, a watchman at the building, whom he had discharged. Dolan died yesterday.

There were no eye-witnesses of the shooting, but other employees at the building corroborated Maloney's statement that Dolan followed him to his office on the second floor, where the shooting took place, after the supervisor had found the man asleep on the first floor and had discharged him for being drunk.

Maloney had gone to the building from his home at 4632 South Grand boulevard after receiving a call from the Potter Electric Signal Service Co., telling him that calls had been made irregularly from the building.

10 Shots Fired. Maloney said Dolan fired two shots at him before he was able to get his pistol from a desk drawer. Three shots fired by Maloney took effect and four of seven from Dolan's pistol struck the supervisor. At inquests today into the two deaths, a coroner's verdict of justifiable homicide was returned in Dolan's case, and a verdict of homicide naming Dolan as the killer in Maloney's death.

Maloney, 45 years old, a former advertising department clerk of the old St. Louis Republic, had been employed by the Globe-Democrat for 15 years, the last eight as building supervisor.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ann Maloney; two daughters, Celeste and Mary Ann; his father, Thomas O. Maloney; two sisters, Miss Laurencetta of the Loretta Order at Kansas City, and three brothers, Albert J., Robert E. and Raymond F. Maloney.

The funeral will be from the Schumacher undertaking establishment, 3013 Meramec street, at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, with services at St. Anthony's Church.

Dolan Funeral Thursday. Dolan, who was 38 years old and resided at 830 McLaran avenue, is survived by his father, John F. Dolan, and a brother, Edward J. Dolan. The funeral will be at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning from the Hermann undertaking establishment, Fair and West Florissant avenues, to Holy Name Church. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

THIRTY-SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF WRIGHT BROTHERS' FLIGHT

Delegation Congratulates Orville, Places Wreath on the Grave of Wilbur, at Dayton, O.

DAYTON, O., Dec. 17.—Airmen of the world honored Orville Wright today on the thirty-second anniversary of the flight he and his brother, Wilbur, made in a frail heavier-than-air machine at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903. A delegation of aviation leaders from Washington and representatives from many other parts of the nation came here to congratulate Orville Wright at a civic luncheon and to honor the memory of Wilbur Wright by placing a wreath on his grave.

President Roosevelt sent a letter of greetings and commented on the recent carrying of U. S. mail by air across the Pacific Ocean.

Orville was at the controls of the ship which took off on the sand dunes of the North Carolina coast and soared above the ground for 12 seconds. Wilbur ran alongside. On a later attempt they covered 852 feet.

Thirty-six thousand airplanes have been built in the United States since that day in 1903, said Leighton W. Rogers, president of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce in America, in a telegram to Wright.

$10,000,000 SPENT IN YEAR IN SOIL CONSERVATION WORK

Chief of Federal Service Reports 13 Erosion Experiment Stations Have Been Set Up.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, reported today more than $10,000,000 was spent in the 1935 fiscal year to protect the country's soil.

Bennett told of large projects in the Southwest where dust storms in recent years have covered huge areas. On Federal land in New Mexico and Arizona, the service has three projects, one covering 17,000,000 acres on the Navajo reservation, another of 8,000,000 acres in the upper Gila watershed and a third of 12,000,000 acres in the Rio Grande watershed. At the close of the year, 13 erosion experiment stations were in operation.

Citing an investigation at Bethany, Mo., the conservation chief said that "although seven inches of surface soil would be lost in about 15 years under continuous corn crops, nearly 78 years would be required to remove the same soil under a rotation of corn, wheat and clover."

I. C. C. Civil Service Examinations. Open competitive examinations will be conducted by the United States Civil Service Commission to fill the positions of transportation tariff examiners and rate agents for the Interstate Commerce Commission. All of the jobs require experience. Full information may be obtained in room 627, new Federal Building.

CONTRADICTORY news from Ethiopia; Haile Selassie's Generals say they have two, four or six hundred thousand warriors about to wipe out the Italians; then comes news of another city captured by Italians or another Ethiopian town "bombed, wrecked and in flames."

Fifteen tri-motored bombers flew 250 miles through Ethiopian territory and back, "dropped their bombs with deadly effect, returned to their base, with no damage except one propeller blade nicked by a bullet." The futility of fighting airplanes from the ground seems demonstrated.

Italy's Gen. Graziani says: "We are trying to stir the enemy to fight by keeping after them. Perhaps finally they will come into the open."

Haile Selassie's men, as courageous as any, having learned that men with spears and old-fashioned rifles cannot face machine guns, and that there is no adequate reply to attack from the air, may have decided to wait and let the rainy season work for them later.

Haile Selassie again says that he is positively going to the front to fight the Italians in person rather than agree to give Italy 125,000 square miles of Ethiopia outright and put 130,000 square miles more under Italian control. He says the League's proposal to do that has "shaken his confidence." It might do that.

Haile Selassie's difficulty is to find the war front. This war is not like the big war, with armies staying in their trenches, laying down barrages over each other's heads.

Last night, when the world was sleeping, Mrs. Elizabeth Tilford was taken from her cell at Woodstock, Ontario, for a short walk or a few steps to a "gallows-tree" arranged in the prison yard, and hanged.

She was 50 years old, mother of nine children, formerly a church worker and Salvation Army member. But all that could not offset the jury's decision that she poisoned her husband that she might marry another man.

In our civilization a woman occasionally poisons a man and "justice" hangs the woman. Formerly she would have been tortured to extort confession and ultimately burned or cut into four pieces, after being broken on the wheel, so there is improvement. The hanging will not do much good, and it seems to come a little too close to Christmas.

An English professional beauty, Rosemary Andree, convinced that her figure is the world's most beautiful is challenged by an American girl named Mardee Hoff. Miss Hoff's friends say her figure is better than any seen since the Venus acrobats was cut out of marble. Mardee Hoff's figures might interest you: Age 21, titian hair, bust 34, hips 36, waist 24, thigh 19½, ankle 8.

Nothing is said about what is back of the woman, or the size of the head, but both are probably satisfactory. Science says "intelligence goes with beauty," and that is probably true, except when intelligence is spoiled by flattery.

The Republican party decides to hold its 1936 convention in Cleveland, casting 54 votes for Cleveland, 39 for Chicago and six for Kansas City. Each city had offered $150,000 as its contribution to convention expenses. The delegates will spend more than that, and then there is the glory.

Republican delegates will see a beautiful city on a beautiful lake and find themselves in a congenial Ohio atmosphere that has produced Presidents.

In Peiping, Chinese students, young men and women, "stormed through the streets" demanding that China defy Japan and fight to prevent further seizure of Chinese territory. Many students were wounded, 10 killed. Twenty Chinese girls, in the front rank defied bullets.

Students shouting "down with Japanese imperialism" cannot do the work of airplanes, tanks and explosives. No use in shouting if you are not prepared for war.

Simplicity Is Keynote of Paris Styles

By Adelaide Kerr

PARIS, Dec. 15. POCKETBOOKS and budgets greatly influenced 1935 fashions. Though costly and luxurious furs, fabrics and jewels were shown, in the heart of the mode appeared scores of costumes which enabled women to be well dressed inexpensively.

Simpler day frocks on which a change of accessories could work magic, less ostentatious use of furs, and the dinner suit, ready for all sorts of after-5-o'clock engagements were among "count the cost" trends.

Another trend was the linking of fashions to current news instead of historical periods. Once the Regency and Renaissance modes were launched, designers turned to the 1935 map.

A gold-braided, double-breasted military mode stepped in. The Italian Renaissance faded into Fascist fashions and China, Russia, Spain and Greece influenced the mode.

Drapery appeared on the bodies of day frocks and in huge scarfs and swathed hiplines of evening gowns, making 1935 "Drapery Year."

The silhouette changed. Curves came back. Busts, slender waists and molded hips appeared. Skirts were shortened for both day and evening—slightly widened in the spring, very slim this winter. More trousered skirts were seen than in any previous year.

Shoulders were broadened, though not squared, and sleeves were struck by inflation. Necklines climbed high by day and were cut to nude, daring décolletés by night.

New rough-surfaced, and shiny fabrics appeared. Black took the center of the color stage and held it. Pleats came in. Trains went out. Elaborate belts increased in importance. Huge fur and colored suede gloves were shown. Scores of tricky accessories from jeweled clips to metal padlocks appeared on frocks.

Heads and feet saw changes too. This was the year of "crazy" hats with feathers much in the mode. Veils grew increasingly important. "Something on the head" became almost an edict for evening.

THE next time he's in a nice expansive mood, suggest that you sort of lead the conversation around to the real crystal perfume bottle we found at GREENFIELD's, first floor. We're sort of weak-minded when it comes to crystal, anyway, but really this is something very special, even for crystal. Hand-carved, jeweled mosaic work, gold filigree—we can't decide what it is about them we like best! And then we have those tall, queer-shaped tops that always remind us of a Moscow cathedral (although we're quite certain that it isn't the same shape, at all). We saw one in particular with gold filigree and jade trimming that fairly left us gaping. There are others in blue, pink and amber, all lovely of course, although we must confess our favorites are the clear crystal. Remember, it's GREENFIELD'S, Locust at Sixth.

A FRIENDSHIP bracelet for Uncle Bob, golf clubs for mother—something almost that tragic will happen to your Christmas list if you don't heed our warning this time—because now there are only 6 shopping days left.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

ANY time I have received help from your kind advice and the experience of others. Now, I hope my experience may help "Disatisfied," whose letter appeared in last night's column. I am a girl 20 years old, and used to be restless and quite dissatisfied (and of course, I naturally get that way once in a while now), until I found a solution. My first trouble was not enough rest; my second was a beastly temper. I soon found that these harmed me no one but myself; so, gradually, along with more rest and gaining self-control, I gained more health and favor with those with whom I was in contact.

All this time I attended Sunday school, not getting much out of it. But one Sunday I was asked to take over a class of small girls; whereupon I realized that I needed more to be taught than to teach. So I declined, ashamed to give my reason. Then our minister talked to me and before I knew it, I had persuaded me to take the class if only for a few weeks. And I certainly found out that I knew very little about God and the Bible—which I could pass on to my pupils. I prayed as I never prayed before to be able to fulfill my task for the sake of those children. I learned from the Bible as well as from the children themselves.

But something else happened! I was losing my restlessness and dissatisfaction. A new part of me had been awakened by serving others. And, in finding God, I found peace and rest. By struggling (and it certainly was a struggle!) to pass on my knowledge, bit by bit, to young boys in games and fellowship, one night a week. If he goes to Sunday School, let him take a class of boys—and this will take all the stick-to-itiveness he possesses; and it takes ideals.

By this time, probably "Disatisfied" has gotten the impression that I think all worldly things are wicked, parties taboo, etc. Not at all, I am just a normal, healthy girl who likes to dance, go to the shows, state, like, read good books and listen to the radio. These activities with the work of making a living, help to develop us physically and mentally, but life is not complete until we develop ourselves spiritually.

Dear Mrs. Carr: WILL you please print some Christmas games in your column? We haven't much time and would like to know right away. We want a new way to present the gifts. BETH AND JEAN.

You can have your tree, with many lights, many icicles (bought by the package) and ornaments, but without the gifts hung on it or laid underneath.

When your guests arrive, give each guest a Christmas card which will have directions leading to another card and so on until each guest has a pretty set of cards. The last card will direct the recipient to a place where she will find her gift. I have a number of new Christmas games and Christmas decorations, I shall be glad to send you if you will mail me self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Dear Mrs. Carr: I AM awfully late writing you, but have been sick since I sent my last letter to you. Please accept my thanks for getting me a stove. The lady to whom you referred me was lovely about it. GRATEFUL FRIEND.

My dear Mrs. Carr: I WAS very friendly with a young lady for about a year and a half, but for some reason, we do not see each other much now. We are still friends, however, and I should like to remember her at Christmas-time. Shall I send candy or just a card? My appreciation of her friendship means more to me than just a card and I don't want to be cheap and yet I don't want to be easy and send candy. What would you do? Your advice will be final. M. M.

"The American Home Has Gone On the Rocks"

By Elsie Robinson

So This Columnist Believes and Tells What She Thinks Caused It.

By Elsie Robinson

FOR the last 20 years there's been a constant discussion about the American Home. Why has it gone on the rocks? Each debater has his own theory and cure. Some of them are exasperating. For instance, there's a large tribe who think that everything would be ducky again if we could all live in big, rambling, country houses, with roses on the front veranda, pigeons in the dove cots and pies cooling on the pantry window sill. A delightful picture, but clearly asinine.

Concealment with the inevitable competition—has inevitably put big, rambling, country houses in the same class with stone-age caves and tent dwellings. Moreover, most bakery pies are cheaper and better than the kitchen variety. (Not mine! If you think that I'm ever going to admit that any bakery can beat me at pie-making, you're crazy!)

However, as I was saying—and as you well know unless you're completely goofy—the Dear Old-Fashioned variety of Home is OUT. Nothing short of a miracle can bring it back to the careworn and complicated modern world. And people who advocate its return as a cure for the youthful crime wave are plainly having pipe dreams.

Then, there's another class who blame Transportation, say they, is responsible for all this wildness. If we didn't have all These Automobiles! But that, too, is piffle. Human brains being what they are, automobiles were likewise inevitable. You might as well say, "If you didn't have all these egg-beaters... or patent can openers." If you're going to have a Machine Age, you'll have to go it whole hog. There's no middle course.

THE largest class, of course, blame it on the Kids themselves. They think that right-minded youngsters should voluntarily band themselves together at the age of six and vow to forthwith resist the devilish lures of all movies, silk stockings, cigarettes, silvers, roadhouses, dance halls, one-piece swimming suits, necking parties, hip flasks and make-up kits. Meanwhile permitting their elders to manufacture and sell said commodities and run said institutions for their enormous personal profit.

A cute idea! And just about as reasonable as asking an omelet to speak French. Personally, I'm all for hanging the blame on the Papas and Mamas themselves. The American Home has gone on the rocks—according to my notion—largely because Parents refuse to accept the role. It would matter comparatively little whether we lived in farm houses or apartments, traveled in ox carts or limousines, if the two people who were responsible for the home faced that responsibility. But, in an unfortunate majority of cases, they don't and won't.

A father's attitude toward his family has altered relatively little—but a mother's has altered enormously. The average modern mother is obsessed with the necessity of keeping herself young and enjoying her youth while she has it. She honestly believes that she has made a brilliant success of her motherhood if, at 35, she is mistaken for her daughter's sister. (Daughter's opinion or this subject is frequently unobtainable.) She's either out for a school-girl figure and complexion or a career. But in either case, you'll note, Mama Comes First. And in either case—it's the bunk!

It is simply impossible to be a full-time mother and yet look 15 at 35. Moreover, no female with her full quota of sense would want to. Nor is it possible to have a full time career and do right by your home. Yes, I know—you've 1937 smart arguments to refute that, sister. But don't try them on me. I'm a mother myself and I know what I'm talking about. The American Home has gone on the rocks, gals, because we've been too busy serving ourselves to keep it off!

parents. Do people really think that such a person holds no place in life at all? Why do people have such a grudge against these ladies? What do people really think of such a type—a useful, unselfish, unmarried woman. INTERESTED TO HEAR.

Bride Herself Writes Letter Of Appreciation

Printed Notes of Thanks Very Improper—Delayed Gifts.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

WILL you express your opinion concerning the good taste of sending cards of greeting bearing various printed messages at occasions other than at Christmas. Could you approve of printed letters of thanks from a bride— if she composes and writes the pattern letter, and then has facsimiles made of it? And please what about sending other thought cards?

Answer: A bride's letters of thanks MUST be written by herself and by hand. This is a last exaction might of course be broken if she is thanking a very intimate friend who knows that she is herself typing the letter and not dictating or even possibly having a stenographer make copies of a model note. A reproduced letter, no matter how done, would be in just as bad taste as an engraved or printed card of thanks—which is just about the furthest degree that lack of appreciation can go—short of a card of condolence, which would perhaps be worse. On the other hand, engraved or printed or by whatever other method worded and illustrated, cards of greeting or good wishes at Christmas or Easter or on birthday or get-well wishes are all among the very nicest things that the postman can bring.

Dear Mrs. Post: After I returned last summer from a lovely visit at the country house of my employer I started to make a piece of hand work, at which I am rather expert, for his wife. But so much has happened that I have not been able to finish it and have not even written a thank-you note to Mrs. Employer. If I can finish it by Christmas time, do you think it would be unsuitable for me to send it then and what shall I write to send with it?

Answer: Even though it is not all necessary—or even conventional—that you send her anything, I think it would delight her very much if you send it whenever you finish it. And enclose a note with it saying that you had begun it while you were staying with her and that you had put so many thoughts of your happy visit into the making of it that you would like her to have it. Or perhaps just write her that you began it when you got home last summer. The reason for explaining is that otherwise she might think you were establishing a custom of sending Christmas presents.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH
By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Dr. Clendening

I SAW last night a remarkable moving picture, "Mutiny on the Bounty," which was, in most respects, absolutely true to the facts as they happened historically. The most interesting thing to the physician and geneticist, however, was not possible to reproduce in the film. This was the outcome of the remarkable social experiment of Pitcairn Island. We are always being asked whether first cousins should marry or whether intermarriage of near relatives results in good stock. In the animal kingdom we know that the greatest improvement in the quality of cattle in modern times has come from inbreeding the same stock, but have we definite proof in actual experiments as to what will happen with the human community? The Pitcairn Island experience furnishes the answer. Here was an actual instance where humans married and bred with their relatives. The circumstances were that the mutineers from the "Bounty" landed first on Tahiti and married native wives. The English mutineers, fearing that they would be discovered and taken back to England and executed, sailed to Pitcairn Island. There were nine Englishmen, nine Tahitian women, six Tahitian men, and three other Tahitian women married to Tahitians. The island was entirely uninhabited when they landed. This group lived from 1789 until 1808, when they were discovered by an American sailing vessel. The only surviving Englishman then was called John Adams. The population was 35. In 1814 there were 46 adults and a number of children. No influx of other persons had occurred; all progeny were the result of inbreeding. They were all strong, healthy and vigorous. The girls were especially beautiful. There was no idleness and no example of that form of deafness which is so especially hereditary. The later history of the colony is not so favorable. The colony was moved about from island to island, and in 1838 two families returned to Pitcairn. Visited in 1878, it was found that intermarriage was bringing deterioration of intellect, morals and energy. The experience of that of a modern Garden of Eden, and the conclusion we must reach is that the health of the progeny of near relatives depends upon the original stock.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS.
A. A. N.: "Would you please advise me as to possible harmful effects of Bromo Seltzer for headaches—say two or three times daily? Some claim it is habit forming, but I find it a relief to my headache."
Answer—Bromo Seltzer contains acetanilide. It is not habit forming, but occasionally it causes a chemical change in the blood which results in a peculiar muddy-colored complexion. This probably does not do very much harm, but I believe that any drug should not be used habitually in the amounts and frequency you mention.

SMALL TOWN GIRL

Kay About to Meet Dane, Plans to Take Down His Conceit—The Meeting With Him.

CHAPTER EIGHT
GENEVIEVE looked at Kay shrewdly. "Who's the ogre lurking in Carvel to devour you?" she asked. Kay shook her head mirthfully. "No one," she protested. "Oh, yes," she remembered. "There is, too. A boy named Elmer Radford. He climbs telephone poles and splices wires and things. If I ever went back, he'd marry me before I could say scat! He wears overalls, and rides a motorcycle, and has pliers and screw drivers hanging all over him. I'll bet he sleeps in them!"

"They must be as bad as cracker crumbs, in bed," Genevieve agreed. "I wouldn't marry him, either."

Kay smiled and went on with her letter, careful to say nothing which might wound Emily. She was particular not to mention the fact that Dane Ripley would be in Boston presently; yet since Helen had told her he was coming, Kay had been conscious of a lively curiosity about this man. Once or twice while she wrote now, she paused and sat thoughtfully silent; and Genevieve asked, in one of these pauses:

"You say you've never met Dane Ripley?"

"That's funny," Kay protested. "That you should ask that! I was just thinking about him; wondering whether I would see him while he's here. Helen is one of my best friends, of course. She was furious with him for the way he treated Emily. And she tossed her head faintly. 'I'd like to meet him,' she declared. 'I'd like to make him fall desperately in love with me, and then just say pooh-pooh, or tush-tush, or something, and leave him groveling.' Laughed at her own words. 'Only I don't suppose he's the groveling kind,' she confessed. 'Heave at him,' Genevieve agreed encouragingly. 'Let the chips fall where they may.'"

"He's taking Sally Hays to the game," Kay said and turned back to her letter again. She had not the least expectation that her thought might become a reality; but on the Friday night before the game, Helen Ripley telephoned her.

"Kay?"

"Yes, Helen. Helen."

"Kay," Helen told her, "you know Dane's here?"

Kay laughed softly. "Be still, my beating heart!" she exclaimed. "Yes, you told me he was coming."

"He expected to take Sally to the game," Helen explained. "But she's come down with the mumps, Kay."

"The mumps?" Kay cried, amused. "I thought Sally was too sophisticated for anything so childish."

"Yes, honestly," Helen insisted. "Isn't that the world's worst? But of course she can't go to the game, and the minute I knew it, I thought of you. Dane's not so bad, Kay. I don't blame you for feeling the way you did about him; but he's a peach, really. We're all having lunch together in town, and dinner afterward at the Crestline Inn. You know, out beyond Dedham. There's a peach of an orchestra there. Will you, Kay? If you fight with him, I'll switch you over to someone else. But really, you'll like him."

"Charming, I'm sure," Kay said, after a moment's hesitation. "I'll have to fix it with Chick Rantoul to get off in time for lunch; but he's going to the game himself, I suppose."

"Oh, he's taking me," Helen assured her. "He'll be at the party!" "I don't think he approves of meeting his employees on a social basis," Kay confessed, trying to keep the faint pique out of her tones. But Helen laughed at her; and in the end the thing was arranged. Kay left the telephone and and girls! Was that a famous victory? Is Yale embarrassed to-night? I'm asking you?"

"If he'd had one more drink," Dane told Kay at his side, "he wouldn't know who did win." Kay nodded, sitting very still. "You're smooth, aren't you?"

"I don't want to distract you," she told him, smiling. "This driving needs all your attention."

"If you want me to keep my mind on the road, don't smile like that," he warned her. "I'll be as drunk as Bill, on a couple more of those."

She made a wry grimace at him. "There, that will sober you off!" she predicted; and he threw up his hand defensively.

When they reached the Inn, Chick and the other party were already there, at the table reserved for them. Chick Rantoul, the roadster, Chick at the wheel. Bill Hurd bet $10, before they left the Stadium, that Dane would beat Chick to the Inn; and throughout the drive he urged Dane continuously to greater speed. But Dane insisted on driving with a sober care.

"I never hurry when I've got a girl like Kay here beside me," he told Bill over his shoulder. "You'd better consult me before you make your bets hereafter."

"Have it your way," Bill assented cheerfully. "I won $300 on the game, so I can afford to lose. Boys

Bill grinned with relief. "Step this way, madame," he suggested, and led her out on the wide veranda. "Service a la carte, you know. What you want, we've got."

"Charmed, I'm sure," Kay said, after a moment's hesitation. "I'll have to fix it with Chick Rantoul to get off in time for lunch; but he's going to the game himself, I suppose."

"Oh, he's taking me," Helen assured her. "He'll be at the party!" "I don't think he approves of meeting his employees on a social basis," Kay confessed, trying to keep the faint pique out of her tones. But Helen laughed at her; and in the end the thing was arranged. Kay left the telephone and

"Wait a minute," he insisted. "I'll be the stake holder." Kay found herself pushing against him, twisting to be free, at once irritated and amused. His lips were on her cheek when Dane came out of the door behind Bill, and touched Bill's arm. "May I cut in?" he suggested.

"Some unfinished business," Bill protested. Kay hated Bill for destroying her dignity. As the easiest escape she said:

"Where's my snickerdoodle?" she demanded. "Boots and saddles, men! Don't shoot till you see the whites of their eyes! Genevieve, I'm going to be primping from now till noon tomorrow." She clinched small fists, shook them in the other's face. "I'm going to lay him end to end, Genevieve. You wait and see!"

Genevieve chuckled. "Remember the old recipe for rabbit stew," she said warningly. "First catch your rabbit!"

But Kay was confident. "Just you wait and see," she challenged. "You've no idea how entrancing I can be when I really try."

HE looked at him in quick amusement. "That's clever, but it isn't true," she protested. "Bill was rough as cobble! Really, it was self-defense to get his mind off dancing!"

He said seriously: "You know, you're a sweet kid."

"Thank you, kind sir," she said. "I ought to bob you a curtsy!"

Then the music stopped, and did not resume. Back at the table they found Chick and Bud Dean arguing about that famous, glorious victory Bill said "glorious," but held out for "famous"; and Bill appealed to them all for a decision.

"Kay and I have a bet on," he explained. "I win, win or lose, but I want to know." Kay found that her glass had been filled. She sipped at it, unthinkingly. Their opinions were divided between the two adjectives, and Chick went to ask the manager whether there was a book of quotations in the house, came back to report failure.

"Then it's a draw," Bill exclaimed. "All bets off! I'll have to return the stakes." He rose, leaning over the table toward Kay; but she said laughingly:

"I might lose it if you gave it back to me now."

The room by this time was filled, the tables packed close together, the small dancing space so crowded that it was impossible to move except by inches. Kay, dancing with Dane again, saw Genevieve. She caught a glimpse of the other girl over intervening heads, and when presently their slow movements drew them together she called:

"Neither did I," Genevieve confessed. "Hello, Dane. If you are Dane!"

Kay said, smiling: "Excuse, please! Genevieve Fay, Dane Ripley."

Inner Security In Times of Uncertainty

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

ON a summer day in London I turned aside into one of the lovely old Wren churches, just to get away from the traffic and heat of the city, to rest, think, meditate and perhaps say a little prayer.

The church was only a few yards away from one of the busiest railway stations, but hidden, and there was a tiny forecourt to it in which a flock of dusty pigeons were feeding coolly together.

Within the church there was a silence almost like that of the hills—the din of the city was hardly even a murmur; and I sat there in the cool air and the shadowed light of the many-colored windows.

In the pew was a prayer book, and I read the beautiful collect for evening prayer, which asks that God, from whom all good counsels proceed, will give us to pass our time in rest and quietness.

It seemed to me that those words were not only sane, but for me they were strangely searching. Some thing deep in my heart told me that this simple prayer goes down to the roots of our human need.

The contrast between those words, so full of understanding, and the noise and strife of the world outside, busy about things that bring neither joy nor light, made me feel my need of the same understanding.

An hour later on London Bridge I watched one of the ships from the wharfside move into the river and go out on the tide to sea. The same words seemed fuller than ever of human feeling—that there should be one to journey with men and give them rest of heart on land and sea.

Amid so many uncertainties we need inner security; in the din of the world we need quietness. How much we may claim for our larger knowledge, it will prove but a mirage if it does not meet this need.

Yet life today is against this quietness and confidence, the world is full of noise and restlessness. We are without finding and joy, and without arriving—confused, unhappy and ill at ease.

An hour in an old church helped me to recover, for a brief time, a lost secret, and I saw my little life against a long background.

a year is my limit. Like Dane, do you?"

"He's nice," Kay agreed. "Pretty good man," Chick assented. "We're beginning to hear about his work."

Kay looked at him quizzically. "It's funny for you and him to come to a party with Bill and Bud. They're so much younger. Of course, Bud's in medical school, but Bill's just a kid. I should think you'd be with men out of your own classes."

"They're married, most of them," Chick explained amiably. "And married women plot against bachelors so diligently that it's dangerous to associate with them. You youngsters have no guile in you."

Kay smiled, and he added honestly: "Matter of fact, I'd rather be with Helen. She's a fine girl, Kay."

Kay nodded; and he said quietly: "She's told me about Emily. And Dane. I'm sorry!"

Kay laughed. "Oh, that was nothing! Emily's married now, you know. And ever so happy."

"Good," he agreed. Then they came back to the table again. Bill was drooping in his chair, half asleep. Someone had borrowed Marny. Kay and Chick sat down, and Kay sipped at the tall glass. It was still full. She thought vaguely that it never seemed to be any less full, no matter how often she tasted it.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

by WYNN

For Wednesday, Dec. 18.
GREAT day for putting your best plans to the test of action; play your hand boldly and find out if it was as good as you thought it was. Be sure that everything you do, say or write is constructive and will help someone.

The Higher the Harder.
It is no accident that the problems of Jupiter are difficult. They are both difficult to understand and difficult to put into actual daily use. Most of us think we would be happy if we had more in the way of possessions, including money, property and power. But the more we possess the more difficult it is for us to be honest, just and unselfish. Could you stand wealth?

Your Year Ahead.
Your year ahead contains conflict between what is past and new conditions. Move ahead, especially from Jan. 28, for better times can come. Keep practical, however. Danger: Feb. 10-March 17; June 5-July 29; Oct. 31-Dec. 23.

Thursday.
Better for serving superiors than yourself, and future than present. (Copyright, 1935.)

Spinach Ring.
Four cups cooked spinach. Three tablespoons butter. Three tablespoons flour. One cup milk.

Two eggs. One-fourth teaspoon paprika. One-fourth teaspoon celery salt. One-fourth teaspoon chopped onion.

One-half teaspoon salt. One-half cup grated cheese. Melt butter and add flour, add milk and cook until very thick.

Sauce forms. Stir constantly. Add rest of ingredients and pour into buttered mold (ring, round or square). Set in pan hot water and bake 35 minutes in moderate oven. Unmold carefully.

One Duck Missing After Ducks Ride With Santa Claus

By Mary Graham Bonner

"HERE'S Yellow Beak!" cried Mrs. Quacko Duck. "He was with us a short time ago and he's not with us now!" exclaimed Mr. Quacko Duck.

"Dear me, this is dreadful," said Santa Claus, looking very much worried. "We're all here except Yellow Beak and he's missing," sobbed all the little ducks. "He was such a dear little duck, too. He was always kind and generous."

"Don't speak that way!" cried Willy Nilly. "You speak as though he were lost forever."

"Lost forever, poor Yellow Beak is lost forever," the little ducks sobbed and moaned. "My dear little grandchild duck," moaned Mrs. Quacko, her eyes filled with sad duck tears.

"Only night before last," groaned Mr. Quacko, as he wiped away a very big tear with his wing, "he came to me and said: 'Granddaddy Duck, I love you very much.'"

"At this all the ducks started to sob once more and the other little ducks hardly could see through their tears. To think that this was Christmas time and they were sad!

Willy Nilly had jumped into the sleigh with Santa and off they had gone. In a very short time, they were back again, and Yellow Beak was with them.

He looked very cold but they could see at once he had not been injured.

"What happened?" every one asked. "I was leaning out of the sleigh to see how many stars I could count and I fell out," quacked Yellow Beak. "That was all."

Clam Broth.
Twenty-five clams washed and drained. Steam until the shells open easily. Save every bit of juice that comes from the clams and add enough water to make one quart. Trim off soft portion of the clam and reserve to serve with the broth. Chop the tough portion and simmer in the liquor for 15 minutes. Strain and add pepper and salt if needed, and serve in bouillon cups. The soft portion may be added to the broth or served in a sauce dish with melted butter and lemon juice poured over it.

Christmas Tree Cookies.
Christmas "trees" that come from dough when baked can be "trimmed" with silver and chocolate shots, bits of preserved fruits and nuts.

The Snow House

By Charlotte Goodman

THE snow had been falling all day in fluttery silence like fragments of whispers from the sky. Boulevards and parks were covered with it and so were houses of marble and those that had a brownstone front; in other places wooden shacks, held together by tenuous nails and the will of those in them, also were covered by the snow. And altogether the gilded city, the muddy and murky city, was encircled with snow, like a tall man, cloaked with his foot lifted as though he were ready to step upward.

Disappointingly, the only step he took was backward as the snow melted.

In one of the shacks there was a woman with her gaze fixed on the falling about her wrinkled gray face, and there was a boy sitting in the corner by the stove trying to fix a battered and crushed violin.

His mother glanced at him quickly and then away as she poked at the fire and afterward returned to the wooden table on which was a little heap of potatoes that she was peeling.

"He didn't mean to break your fiddle. He was drunk and didn't know what he was doing," the woman said to her son, excusing his father.

"It's all right," said the boy and wrinkled his forehead.

"Can you fix it any, Arthur?"

"No, I guess I can't."

"Maybe sometime I'll be able to get you another one. I'll put a penny in the tin cup every day like we did for the baby's buggy before she died. Remember, we almost had enough saved up when she died. It won't take long to save the money."

"And then I'll take it like he did that money and get drunk on it."

"No, he won't. I'll make him promise he won't. He ain't a bad man when he's sober."

"Aw, I don't care. But I was just learning how to play on it. I could play 'Home Sweet Home' pretty good."

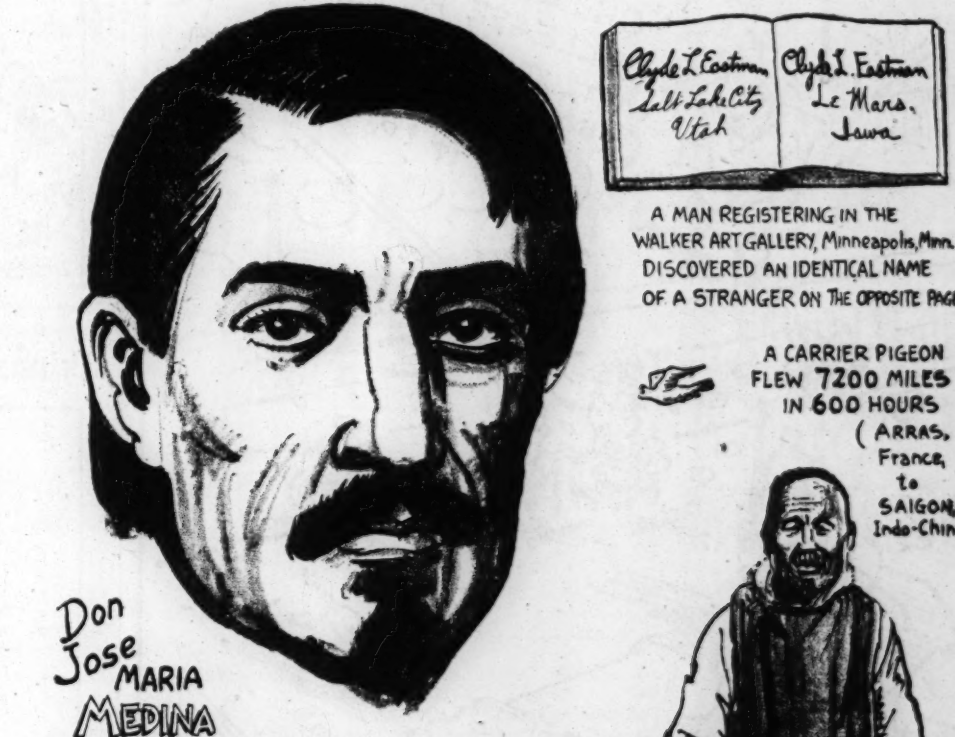

The old wind came up and put its face against the house like a jester sticking hundreds of tongues through the cracks. The house shivered as disconsolately as though it had a mind to fall, as some day it would, and cease to be this monument to a family's life and family life, for who knows how many came to it and went away?

The boy got up, held the cracked and broken violin in his hands for a moment, then opened the door of the stove and threw the violin into the fire.

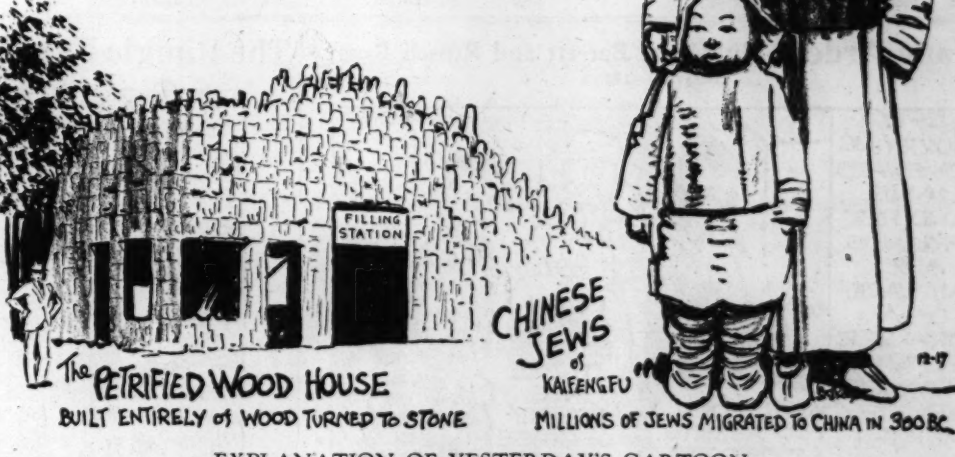

"That ends it," he said, "I don't want to think about it any more."

the reason was since families have got smaller they have kitchenettes instead of kitchens and eat steakettes instead of steaks. Looks to me like they ought to be consistent and call these little steers steerettes.

A kitchenette is a kitchen with everything small except the sink. That's bigger so it can hold more dirty dishes. Anyhow, all us old cowmen are for big steers, big steaks, big kitchens and big families, and we're agin' all this "ette" business.

DISBARMENT SUIT AGAINST LAWYER WHO IS LEGISLATOR

State Representative Sharon J. Pate of Caruthersville Charged With Devising and Operating Scheme of Fraudulent Tax Sales.

RECORDS SHOW HE GOT $6000

It Is Alleged That He, as Attorney for Drainage Districts, Let Delinquent Owners Bid In Land for Fees and Costs.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., Dec. 18.—Suits to disbar State Representative Sharon J. Pate, an attorney of Caruthersville, was filed in Pemiscot County Circuit Court today by the Advisory Committee to Boyle G. Clark of Columbia, general chairman of the State's 38 bar disciplinary committees. The information charges Pate, himself a member of the Bar Disciplinary Committee for the Thirty-eighth Judicial Circuit, with professional misconduct as attorney for Pemiscot County Drainage Districts 6 and 8.

Records in the Sheriff's office show that in 94 suits filed by Pate for collection of $51,874 in taxes and penalties, the land involved was sold under execution for a total amount equal only to the costs of $10,515, including $6134 in fees to Pate. The districts got less than $150 for the judgment of $51,874.

Says Pate Devised Scheme. The information alleges Pate devised a fraudulent scheme to permit owners or mortgagees of tax-delinquent land to bid it in at tax sales for the amount of the costs, which included his fee as attorney. Pate's purpose, according to the information, was not only to defraud payment of the taxes, but to enrich himself through fees. Briefly, his scheme as alleged in the information, was to agree with land owners or mortgagees that they consent to judgments against the property for the full amount of delinquent taxes plus costs and attorneys fees and then be permitted to purchase the land under execution for the amount of costs and fees.

He carried out the scheme in the years 1932, 1933 and 1934. It is alleged, although he had been appointed by the Pemiscot County Court for the very purpose of enforcing collection of the taxes.

319 Suits in Three Years. In the three-year period, the records show, Pate filed a total of 319 tax suits, but stipulations for the full amount of the taxes and costs were entered in only 122, apparently in pursuance of the alleged agreement between Pate and landowners.

Pate, not paid by salary, received fees in 94 of these 122 cases, the ones in which execution sales were held under the judgments and the land sold for the amounts of costs, including fees, without consideration of the taxes.

Virtually all the 94 execution sales took place in November and December, 1933, and January, 1934. The stipulations had been filed as early as July, 1933.

A copy of a letter bearing the purported signature of Pate, similar to others said to have been sent by the attorney to tax delinquents, reads:

"Court is again coming on and I note that two drainage tax suits are still pending against you. They are interested and will come down to the office, I am confident that I can show you a way to rid yourself of these taxes for a sum not to exceed $300. I shall be pleased if you will call me and make an engagement."

Shortly after the information was filed, Pate was served with a citation, issued at the direction of Circuit Judge James M. Reeves, ordering him to appear Jan. 4 to make answer to the charges.

The information, filed by John L. Gilmore and George L. Stemmler, both of St. Louis, as attorneys for the Advisory Committee, asserts that if bids were made at the execution sales for amounts larger than costs and legal fees, the land was withdrawn from sale by Pate and persons attempting to make higher bids were intimidated.
